The concerts under the management of Mr. W. B. Healey. A few opinions of the press:—L'Etoile Belge, Brussels: "Herr Waldemar Meyer.—The hero of the evening was a young German violinist, pupil of Joachim, Mr. Waldemar Meyer. In addition to the purest feeling and an incisive style, this artist possesses a magnificent tone, an irreproachable intonation, and a great command of the bow, as also an intimate understanding of the style of certain composers with whom he is more particularly in sympathy." Le Temps (Paris).—Popular Concerts. "M. W. Meyer is a violinist of the grand school. He played the first movement of Raff's Concerto in the style of an artist for whom his art presents no difficulties. In the Adagio his broad tone revealed the great school of which he is a disciple; while the finale showed his talent in a third aspect. To sum up, the artist is complete. The public accorded him the warmest of receptions; he was recalled three times, and with justice." Leipziger Nachrichten: "Herr Waldemar Meyer made a most favourable appearance as violinist, and earned universal applause. Not only does Herr Meyer possess a very considerable technique, but his tone is distinguished by robust power and a noble fulness, which render him better qualified than many other players for the performance of Spohr's adagios, and which affect the listener most agreeably." The Daily News, speaking of Herr Waldemar Meyer's performance at the Crystal Palace, says: "Vieuxtemps' Concerto in D minor revels in difficulties which once taxed even its own powers, but Herr Meyer made light work of them, and fairly won the warm applause of his audience."

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—TO-MORROW (Saturday) EVENING. First production of "Reconciled," "Home Chimes," "A Wedding Present," and the Celebrated Case, specially designed and written for J. A. HOVELL'S FIRST ANNUAL DRAMATIC COSAQUE.

HERCAT.—EGYPTIAN HALL.—DAILY, at three and eight.—Hercat's Mystery of SHE concludes the programme at 4.45 and 9.45. Prior to the production of this great illusion, Hercat's magical mélange and ventriloquial entertainment continue to surprise and amuse crowded audiences of the élite of London society. Hercat's fame had preceded him, and England is now thoroughly endorsing the Yankee opinion that he has no equal as an illusionist, ventriloquist, and humourist. Admission from 5s. to 1s. Seats booked at the Box-office and all Libraries.—W. Morton, Manager.

MOHAWKS.—GRAND OPERATIC NIGHT, TO-MORROW, to inaugurate the 16th year of the Mohawk Minstrels' Entertainment at the ROYAL AGRICULTURAL HALL. BETSY, THE BUTTERMAN'S DAUGHTER, Harry Hunter's new humorous song, is now SUNG, with enormous success, by LITTLE THOMAS, every evening, in the MOHAWK MINSTRELS' ENTERTAINMENT.

MASKELYNE, COOKE, and entire EGYPTIAN HALL COMPANY, on tour.—FREE TRADE HALL, MANCHESTER, five weeks. Another grand success. Hundreds unable to gain admission.—Expressions of the Manchester Press.—The Courier, Nov. 1: "Marvellously astonishing amusement gives place to surprise and wonder at the mysterious effect of the whole thing, rightly described, without exaggeration, as 'the most wonderful and difficult stage illusions ever introduced.'" The Guardian, Nov. 1: "A startling sensation. Apart from its scientific interest, an evening with Messrs. Maskelyne and Cooke is most enjoyable." The Examiner, Nov. 1: "Altogether the entertainment is of a very high order, and commands an interest quite unique." The Evening Mail, Nov. 1: "Simply bewildering. The stage illusions deserve to rank as probably the cleverest tricks of the kind ever performed in public." The Evening News, Nov. 1: "The entertainment altogether is one of the most extraordinary ever seen."—The company will return to their "Home of Mystery" at Christmas, with new wonders.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

This corporation has been formed for the purpose of enabling mine owners to surmount one of the obstacles that now retards the realisation of those highly favourable views so often expressed by all experts who have visited the South African goldfields, and who are of the opinion that they will prove the richest ever yet discovered.

The following will, inter alia, be the special aims of the company:

(a) To generally assist by cash advances, by way of mortgage or otherwise, owners of valuable properties in systematically developing and working the same.

(b) To accept payment partly or wholly in cash and partly or wholly in fully paid-up shares for the erection and equipment of milling establishments.

(c) To acquire mining licences in newly-discovered auriferous districts and work such properties, or develop and sell the same to subsidiary companies.

(d) To establish and work mills on properties of proved value conjointly with the owners thereof.

(e) To purchase from mine owners the quartz raised from their respective mines at prices regulated by special assay, &c.

(f) To establish public mills on favourable sites in centres of existing mining districts for crushing and treating quartz.

The corporation has power to acquire any existing mines, and to extend and develop the same, or to erect milling plant on properties of proved value for a specified interest in such properties, or on such other terms as the directors consider desirable and advantageous.

No contracts have been entered into, and no promotion money has been or will be paid.

The nominal capital of the corporation is £250,000, in 250,000 shares of £1 each. The present issue is for £100,000. The shares are divided into 249,980 ordinary shares, and 20 founders' shares. The founders' shares will receive no dividend in any year until the ordinary shares have received 15 per cent. dividend for that year. After setting aside such part of the revenue as may be required for the purposes of a reserve fund, and paying 15 per cent. dividend on the ordinary shares, the founders' shares will receive half of the remaining profits. The subscribers of founders' shares, in addition to paying up the nominal amount thereof, also pay the whole of the preliminary expenses of the corporation up to the first general allotment of shares (except brokerage), and subscribe for 40,000 ordinary shares. But in allotting no preference will be given to the ordinary shares thus subscribed. The corporation thus enjoys the advantage of commencing business with sufficient capital, free from the preliminary expenses incidental to the formation and promotion of a financial undertaking of this description.

On the foregoing basis 20 founders' shares and 40,000 of the ordinary shares have been subscribed, making a total already assured of £40,020.

In cases where no allotment can be made, the deposit will be returned in full. In the event of the number of shares allotted to any applicant being less than that applied for, the surplus of the deposit will be credited towards payment of the further sums payable on the shares which may be allotted to such applicant.

A copy of the memorandum and articles of association can be seen at the offices of the company's solicitors.

Applications for shares must be forwarded, together with the deposit of two shillings and sixpence per share, to the bankers of the corporation or to the secretary, at the offices of the corporation.

Prospectuses and forms of application may be obtained from the company's bankers, or from the secretary, at the offices of the corporation.

London, Nov. 5, 1888.

The List will Close To-morrow (Saturday), for Town, and Monday, for Country.

Interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. on the debenture capital paid up and 5 per cent. on the share capital paid up is guaranteed by the contractor for three years from allotment.

THE GUERNSEY WATERWORKS COMPANY (Limited).—Incorporated under the Companies Acts 1862 to 1886.—Share capital £40,000, divided into 8,000 shares of £5 each. Payable as to £1 on application, £1 on allotment, and the balance in calls of £1, at intervals of not less than two months. Debenture capital £20,000, divided into 200 debentures of £100 each, and bearing interest at 4½ per cent., and repayable, at the company's option, after six years, at £105. Payable, 10 per cent. on application, 20 per cent. on allotment, 20 per cent. on December 20th, 20 per cent. March 31st, 1889, and 30 per cent. June 30th, 1889.

The debentures will constitute a first charge on the freehold property and works of the company, on the concession, and generally on the assets, water rates, and undertakings of the company, and will be secured in accordance with the laws of the island.

TO the SHAREHOLDERS of the EAST and WEST INDIA DOCK COMPANY.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—The notices addressed to you from the Dock House with reference to the meeting to be held on the 15th inst. intimate that motions will be made that the new board shall consist of 18 members, viz., 12 of the present directors and six outside shareholders; and you have been invited to sign proxies to be used in furtherance of these suggestions.

It will thus be seen that it will be proposed that the maximum number of directors sanctioned by the Act of 1888 should be appointed, and that two-thirds of this number should consist of retiring directors, who are responsible for the past management of the company's affairs, which has resulted so disastrously.

The shareholders of the London and St. Katharine's Dock Company yesterday decided (very wisely we venture to think) that the election of directors on the board of that company should be confined to the minimum number authorised by the Act of 1888—namely 15; the maximum in their case being 21.

We venture to suggest that, having regard to the comparative capital of the two companies, the number of directors to be elected by the East and West India Dock shareholders on the 15th inst. should be the statutable minimum of 12, and not the maximum 18 as suggested by the present directors.

It occurs to us, too, that in order to ensure different and better management of the company's affairs in the future, it is obviously necessary so to limit the number of the present directors to be elected on the new board as to secure this result.

If these views commend themselves to you, we would ask you not to fill up and return the proxy papers sent to you from the company's office, to be used in favour of the present directors' policy, but to send a proxy on a penny stamp to Sir Richard Nicholson, at 23, Parliament-street, Westminster, not later than ten o'clock on Saturday, the 10th inst., to be used in the sense of the policy which we have indicated as desirable.—We are, ladies and gentlemen, your obedient servants,

G. C. T. BARTLEY.

MONEY MARKET.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Yesterday's heavy withdrawal of gold from the Bank has caused a firmer tendency in the discount market, yet the actual advance in rates is slight, in consequence of the very small supply of bills and the plethora of money. It would appear that a large amount of business is still being done with actual cash or by telegraphic transfers, the use of which is steadily increasing, especially in Eastern operations. Some transactions were reported in three months' paper at 3¼ per cent., but the more general rate was 3, and the Indian banks refused to pay more than 2¾ for drafts "to arrive." There is an inquiry for bills for the chief financial centre on the Continent, namely, Berlin, where the private rate of discount is about on a level with that current here. Short loans were offered at 1¼, ½ per cent., and a considerable sum was lent at the former figure, or 3¾ below the "minimum"—a difference that is believed to be almost unprecedented. And this fact is all the more striking with daily reports of an improvement in trade. In the Bank return the bullion exhibits a decrease of £928,743, of which £877,000 has been taken for export and £51,743 for the provinces, while the note circulation is £70,180 less. The reduction in the reserve is, therefore, £858,563, and the proportion is 1½ per cent. worse, at 36¼ per cent. Notwithstanding the large efflux of gold, the private deposits are only £138,096 down, due partly to the release on Saturday last of £500,000 against maturing Treasury paper, but the diminution in the public deposits is £1,010,486. Other securities are £280,046 less, while the Government securities exhibit no change. The amount repayable to the Bank by the Chancellor of the Exchequer consequently remains at £1,900,000, the total mentioned this morning.

Vague apprehensions as to the probable course of the money market were reflected on the Stock Exchange at the commencement of business, and prices were nearly all lower. The decline, however, was not severe, and in the afternoon a recovery ensued, partly on the announcement that no more gold had been taken out of the Bank. Higher quotations were received, too, from Paris, where, it is stated, a contract for the new Russian loan has at length been signed, and the Berlin Bourse closed firmer in sympathy, though down on the day. On the whole, dealings here were more numerous, partly in view of a large supply of money at the coming settlement. Consols fell ⅛ to ¼ per cent., but some of the English railways, after being flat, were strong. Brighton "A," which had been dealt in at 127½, left off at 129, or nearly 1 per cent. higher than yesterday. Caledonian and Great Western were better, while Taff Vale fell 2 and a few others ⅛ to ½. American lines opened firm, but afterwards relapsed, in response to New York advices, and were flat late in the street. On the day the decline in most shares ranged from ¼ to 1. Lake Shores, Milwaukees, Eries, Ohios, Louisvilles, Norfolk and Westerns, Readings, and Union and Northern Pacifics exhibited chief depression. Grand Trunks gave way, chiefly on the issue of a weekly traffic return with a decrease of £2,173. However, except the First Preference, which fell about ½, the adverse movement was only ⅛ to ¼. A similar reduction was apparent in Canadian Pacifics. Mexican (Vera Cruz) Ordinary and Preferences, together with some of the Argentine railroads, shared in the flatness.

Foreign Government bonds showed firmness, especially in the afternoon, and a rise occurred in Argentine, Buenos Ayres Cedulas, Greek, Spanish, Turkish, and Russian of 1873. The latter were freely bought on French account, and were finally quoted 101. On the other hand, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Entre Rios Railway Mortgage, Guatemala, Mexican, Peruvian, and Santa Fé receded. Amongst cable stocks Anglo-American were lower. The chief feature in miscellaneous shares was an active demand for Salt Union, which rose 1½ to 5¼ prem. These purchases were mostly on provincial account. An advance took place in some of the brewery securities, including a rise of 2 per cent. in Guinness Ordinary. In the mining market De Beers shares fell to 16, attributed to the news of a reef collapse in the Kimberley Central, from which the De Beers company obtains at present most of its diamonds. But on the subsequent notification that the damage was only slight the quotation recovered to 17, being only ½ down on the day. Gold shares were dull, and copper mines firm, notably Tintos.

No bullion operations occurred at the Bank. The Lahn, from New York, has brought £21,000 in silver. About £96,000, chiefly in bar gold, has been taken for Bombay by the Sutlej, and £15,000 in bar silver for Calcutta by the Rohilla.

Bar silver is steady, at 43⅛d per ounce. Bombay transfers rose 1-32d, to 1s 4 9-16d, and Calcutta declined 1-32d, to 1s 4 17-32d. As regards Rupee Paper, the Four and a Half per Cents. receded ⅛, to 71⅛, ¼, and the Four per Cents. were inactive, at 67⅛, ¼.

Continental Bourses relapsed at one time, but subsequently recovered, although several stocks at Berlin closed at a reduction. The Russian rouble fell 1¼, after being worse. In Paris an advance was finally apparent in most securities, chiefly in Suez Canal, Panama, and Rio Tinto. Three per Cent. Rentes improved 15c, to 82f 82½c, and the Four and a Half per Cents. 2½c, to 104f 67½c. The exchange on London (cheques) was 1c better, at 25f 31c.

On 'Change bills were in less demand, mainly owing to the important gold movement just notified. Since last Thursday the Russian rouble has fallen over 4 per cent., due partly, it is believed, to the large failure in St. Petersburg referred to this morning. The other variations comprised a decline in the Italian rate and a rise in quotations on Belgium and Austria.

With the completion of the Bourse liquidation there is less demand for money in Paris, and the Bank of France return exhibits a decrease of £1,909,760 in the bills discounted. Notes in circulation are £1,319,560 less, and Treasury Accounts Current £1,070,200 less; but other accounts current here increased £895,280, and advances to the public £197,080. Gold in hand is larger by £180,800, and silver by £67,920. The proportion between bullion and circulation is 85·85 per cent. Profits for the week amount to £34,480.

A Reuter's telegram from Buenos Ayres, dated Nov. 7, states that the premium on gold has declined.

The following note relates to the Sovereign Life Office. According to an opinion expressed in a circular recently issued by Mr. Thomas A. Welton, the provisional official liquidator of this undertaking, the whole of the premiums placed to suspense account must be returned if the Court eventually makes a compulsory winding-up order. But if an order be not made, these premiums will be retained, in furtherance of an arrangement for reducing the sums payable on policies and maintaining them in existence:

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE DAILY TELEGRAPH."

The Sovereign Life Office.

Sir—Can you, by the aid of your powerful pen, help to hasten a solution of the affairs of the above company? It is now nearly two years since it was publicly made known that it was as nearly as possible insolvent. Since that time a great number of lives have fell in upon which not one shilling has been paid, and the present policyholders have still to keep up their premiums to retain their interest, if any, in whatever arrangements may at some time be made. What a miserable death-bed for those who for years have made sacrifices, in the endeavour to benefit those they leave behind them, to find at the last that they have been trusting to a broken reed! Your obedient servant,

A POLICY-HOLDER OF OVER THIRTY YEARS.

Application has been made to the Stock Exchange Committee to appoint a settling day in, and to grant a quotation to the [illegible] Company (Limited), shares, and £50,000 Six per Ct. Debenture Stock; Fore-street Warehouse Company (Limited), £120,000 Four per Ct. Debentures; Monte Video Telephone Company (Limited), Ordinary and Preference Shares; Patent Victoria Stone Company (Limited), shares; and South Hetton Coal Company (Limited), stock. Application has also been made to the Committee to allow a further issue of £7,757 Three and a Half per Ct. Debenture Stock of the Bristol Corporation to be added to the amount now quoted in the Official List.

The Grand Trunk Railway of Canada receipts for the week ended Nov. 3 exhibit an increase of £182; but the Chicago and Grand Trunk show a decrease of £2,300, and the Detroit, Grand Haven, and Milwaukee £55, making a net decrease of £2,173, and of £100,370 for eighteen weeks to the above date. The Macahé and Campos Railway receipts for August were £22,300, or £3,000 in excess of last year. The traffic receipts of the Lombardo-Venetian Railway from the 29th ult. to the 4th inst. amounted to 792,000 francs, showing an increase of 11,131 francs as compared with 1887. The Cleveland and Mississippi Railway earnings from Oct. 17 to 24 were $98,640, against $110,430 last year.

For the half-year ended June the report of the Rohilkund and Kumaon Railway Company (Limited) exhibits a net profit of £4,150, and the available total is £4,417. The directors recommend the payment of a dividend of 2 per ct. for the six months, leaving £106 to be carried forward.

In the report of the Panulcillo Copper Company (Limited) it is stated that the operations at Panulcillo for the half-year resulted in a profit of £9,[illegible], or, after deducting interest paid here on debentures and London charges for the period named, besides adding £840 to the reserve fund, a net profit of £6,825. The directors have decided to pay on Dec. 1 next interest for the half-year at the rate of 5 per ct. per annum.

METROPOLITAN MEAT.—There was a moderate supply on offer. The trade was steady at the annexed prices. Beef, 2s 4d to 4s 4d; mutton, 2s 6d to 5s 0d; veal, 4s 2d to 5s 6d; and pork, 3s to 4s 6d per 8lb, by the carcase.

DEPTFORD FOREIGN CATTLE.—Number of animals in the market this day: Beasts, 597; calves, 160; sheep, 5,629.

SHADWELL FISH.—Supply small. Demand brisk. Prices: Mixed prime, 30s to 40s; turbot, 40s to 50s; soles, 120s; haddocks, 5s to 10s; plaice, 20s; cod, 7s to 9s; skate, 7s to 9s; roker, 3s to 5s; oysters, 3s 6d per trunk; ditto, 2s per bag; bloaters, 3s 6d per pad.

WHITECHAPEL HAY AND STRAW.—A moderate supply was on sale. There was a steady trade at late rates. Prime clover, old, 120s to 142s; ditto new, 80s to 110s; inferior, 45s to 75s. Prime meadow hay, old, 100s to 116s; ditto new, 80s to 100s; inferior, 30s to 70s. Straw, old, 42s to 46s; and ditto, new, 35s to 40s per load.

METALS.—Messrs. Morrison, Kekewich, and Co. report: "Copper—Steady, £78 to £78 15s for spot G.O.B.'s and G.M.B.'s, £79 to £79 10s three months; Wallaroo, £83 10s; Burra, £80; tough, £81 10s; best, £83; sheets, £88. Yellow Metal—7½d to 7¾d. Tin—Highest, £101 17s 6d; lowest, £101 7s 6d; market flat, £101 7s 6d to £101 17s 6d Straits; £101 15s to £102 for Australian; £104 to £105 English. Lead—£14 English, £13 12s 6d Spanish. Spelter—£18 15s to £18 17s 6d. Quicksilver—£9 10s first hands, £9 9s 6d second hands. Antimony—£42 10s to £43 10s. Iron—Scotch pigs, 41s 3d to 41s 1½d; closing buyers, 41s 3d."—(Official Report of the London Metal Exchange).—Closing prices: Copper—Chili bars, G.O.B.'s, cash, £78 5s to £78 10s; ditto, three months, £79 to £79 10s; G.M.B.'s, cash, £78 5s to £78 10s; ditto, three months, £79 to £79 10s. Tin—Highest, £101 17s 6d; lowest, £101 7s 6d; fine foreign, cash, Straits, £101 7s 6d to £101 17s 6d; Australian, £101 15s to £102 5s; three months, Straits, £102 to £102 10s.

BIRMINGHAM TRADE.—Though the influx of orders is checked by the advance in prices, the market is steady, and the majority of manufacturers are fully employed. The principal demand is for sheets, which are firm at prices ranging from £8 10s upwards. For galvanized sheets there is an especially busy demand for export. Manufacturers are generally determined to resist for the present further demands of workpeople, but the demands serve to strengthen the market. Marked bars and all other kinds of iron show unquotable change.

BRADFORD TRADE.—The wool market shows continued firmness. In some instances, staplers are quoting a further advance; but it is steadily resisted on the part of buyers, and to do business only emphasises the steadiness of holders. There is an entire absence of any business of a speculative sort. Colonial descriptions are producing steady business at full late rates. Mohair continues to be quoted dearer, and alpaca is increasing in firmness. In yarns there is a fair amount of new business offering; yet any offers for large quantities are made at lowest price, and, owing to the improved position in which spinners find themselves, are refused. Mohair is steadily improving. Piece trade for fancy goods is good.

GLASGOW IRON.—The market continues steady; small business at 41s 2½d, 41s 3d, 41s 2½d cash; 41s 5d, 41s 5½d month; buyers, 41s 3d cash, 41s 5d month; sellers near. Middlesbro'—Done at 43s 9d cash; buyers, 43s 8½d cash, 43s 11½d month, sellers, 1d more. Hematite—Done at 44s 2½d cash, 44s 6d month, buyers at these prices, sellers ½d more.

LIVERPOOL COTTON.—Sales of the day, 12,000 bales; on speculation and for export, 1,000. American steady. East Indian firm. Brazilian 1-16d higher. Egyptian ⅛d higher. Peruvian rough increased demand, quotations slightly irregular; smooth in request at full rates. Middling Upland, 5⅝d; ditto Orleans, 5¾d; fair Pernam, 5 1-16d; ditto brown Egyptian, 6⅛d, fair Dhollerah, 4¼d, good ditto, 4 11-16d; fair Oomra, 4 1-16d; good ditto, 4 11-16d. Futures quiet.

CORK CORN.—450cwt barley, 6s 9d to 7s 6d; 1,654cwt black oats, 5s 6d to 6s, 240cwt white oats, 5s 6d to 6s 3d.

MANCHESTER CORN.—Trade has remained firm during the week, but purchases have been limited to actual requirements. This morning, with a thin attendance, the business passing was small. Wheat brought previous currencies. Flour was steady. Peas 1d per cental lower. Beans rather easier. Oats quotably unchanged. Maize, in larger demand, improved ½d to 1d per cental.

BRISTOL CATTLE.—We had enough cattle on sale to meet the demand, though the supply was moderate; prices ranged from 5s to 6s. Very few sheep came to hand; wethers made 8½d, ewes, 7d to 7½d. Pigs, in short supply, at 8s 6d to 9s 3d. Late rates obtained, and 1,700 store cattle brought to market.

CHESTER CATTLE.—The supply of cattle was smaller than for some time past, and the hardening of prices noted for the last month continued, the best milch cows fetching £21; in-calf heifers £17 to £18; good barrens £10 to £13; three-year-old heifers £11 to £14, best stirks £10 to £11, and inferior £8 to £10. The number of sheep offered also showed a decrease, and prices paid ranged from 35s to 50s.

CORK BUTTER.—Ordinary: Firsts, 96s; seconds, 90s; thirds, 84s; fourths, 73s. Kegs: Firsts, 96s; seconds, 89s; thirds, 83s. Mild-cured firkins: Superfine, 100s; fine, 95s; mild, 90s. In market, 1,520 firkins, 1 keg (137 mild).

PRODUCE MARKETS—THURSDAY.

SUGAR.—The market was again quiet to-day for cane kinds, no sales of importance being reported; but beetroot was rather dearer, and sales were made of German 88 per cent. at 12s 10½d, (less ½ per cent.), for Nov., and 13s for Dec.; while the closing quotations were 12s 10½d (less ½) for Nov., 13s less ½ Dec., 13s Jan., and 13s 1½d Jan.-March, f. o. b. 250 bags Mauritius syrups sold at 12s 3d to 13s. In the refined market the demand was steady, and sales to a fair extent were made, at late prices.

COFFEE.—Slow market, and prices of foreign kinds (of which the bulk consisted) were in many cases 1s lower, 1,402 bags Central American, about two-thirds, selling at 80s 6d to 91s 6d for middling greenish Costa Rica, 83s 6d to 95s for middling to good colory new Granada, and 78s to 77s for fancy and yellow Salvador, while 1,904 bags Rio were bought in. Futures were again lower, 5,000 bags being sold, and the closing official quotations being 68s 6d Nov.-Feb., 68s March, 68s 9d April-May, and 68s 6d June-Oct.

RICE was firm, and a cargo of from 1,800 to 2,000 tons, per sailing vessel, March-May shipment, has been sold, at 7s 6d for Ngatbain and 7s 3d for Bassein, open charter.

COTTON.—Quiet for East India and easier for American futures.

JUTE.—Quiet but steady, and sales to a fair extent said to be made for arrival, on c. f. and i. terms.

OILS.—Linseed—steady, at £20 for pipes landed. Rape—Quoted at £20 10s for brown on spot, and £22 15s for refined. Cotton—steady, at £20 10s for crude on spot; £22 for refined, in ordinary casks; and £22 5s Hull. Turpentine—Unchanged. American spirits on spot, 36s; Nov.-Dec., 35s 3d; and Jan.-April, 35s 9d. Petroleum—Rather better. American on spot, 6⅛d to 6 11-16d; Nov.-Dec., 6¼d to 6 11-16d; and Jan.-April, 6⅛d to 6 11-16d; while Russian on spot is quoted at 5⅛d.

SILK.—Messrs. H. W. Eaton and Sons report: "There has been no active resumption of business since the sales, but so far as holders are concerned the market is very firm. There is a higher tendency in the Eastern markets, and some speculative purchases in Milan have arrested any further decline in Italian silks. The deliveries are satisfactory, and as the imports continue to be small the stock again shows a reduction."

CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW.—Notwithstanding the general absence of the floral attractions of nature in East London, the working men of Stepney have again got together a highly creditable show of chrysanthemums. It is held in the Parish Room, York-road, Stepney, having been opened on Wednesday by the Bishop of Bedford, and remains on view till late this evening. The vicar, the Rev. S. B. Bridges, states that not one of the exhibitors can be termed a gardener or florist, but all are real lovers of flowers, who devote to their culture the time that can be spared, in the early morning or late at night, before or after their ordinary avocations. Although possessing very small back gardens, and having only canvas coverings in the place of glass, yet in several instances more than a hundred good flowering plants are shown.

NAVY.—Her Majesty's ship Triumph, 14, Captain Henry Rose, which was commissioned at Portsmouth on Jan. 1, 1885, for service as flagship on the Pacific Station, arrived at Devonport yesterday from Coquimbo, to be paid off. The Audacious yesterday arrived at Suez from the China Station, en route for England. At the Admiralty yesterday the following appointments were announced: Lieutenants—Arnot Henderson, to the Archer; Henry W. Steele, to the Mohawk (both to date 8th inst.) Sub-Lieutenant—Henry Blackett, to the Rover (to date 8th inst.) Staff-Commander—James Edward Tully, to the President, additional, temporary (to date 13th inst.) Engineers—Walter James Featherstone, to the Victor Emanuel, additional; Robert Haxby Cooper, to the Himalaya (both to date 5th inst.) Carpenter—Samuel George Hicks, to the Monarch (to date 8th inst.)

MEDICAL ELECTRICITY.—Harness' Electropathic Belt and Treatment, sufferers from nervous exhaustion, brain fag, sleeplessness, rheumatic affections, liver and kidney diseases, ladies' ailments, &c., should write for pamphlet and copies of testimonials (post free). Consultation free, personally or by letter.—Address Mr. C. B. Harness, Consulting Medical Electrician, 52, Oxford-street, London, W. (corner of Rathbone-place).—[ADVERTISEMENT.]

Sir James Murray's Patent Fluid Magnesia secures a perfect digestion, corrects acidity, and relieves heartburn, without injury to the coats of the stomach. Effectual in cases of irregular digestion, gout, and gravel, and the safest corrective for women and children. Recommended by medical men, from Sir Humphry Davy and Sir Astley Cooper to leading modern physicians. In bottles 1s. each, of all chemists and patent medicine vendors.—[ADVT.]

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THURSDAY.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

SLAVE TRADE.

Sir J. FERGUSSON, in reply to Sir G. Campbell, said that all the information on the subject of the Slave trade possessed by the Foreign Office was presented in an annual report; but a Blue Book, with recent particulars, was in preparation, and would be presented shortly.

ARMY AND NAVY COMMITTEE.

In reply to Lord C. Beresford, who asked when the committee on the administration of the Army and Navy was likely to report,

The Marquis of HARTINGTON said he was not quite sure that it would be convenient that a question as to the progress of a Royal Commission should be addressed to members of it who happened to have seats in that House, and it might be more convenient to address them to members of the Government. As in this case, however, very little information could be given, perhaps there would be no objection to his answering the question. (Laughter.) The Royal Commission sat several times before the recess, and obtained a large amount of information in a documentary shape, and the opinions of a large number of gentlemen of great experience in gun firing. The Commission would meet again early next week, and he hoped would be able to devote themselves very constantly during the remainder of the session to the subject of their inquiry; but it was extremely improbable that they would be able to report before the end of the year.

SALVATION ARMY IN SWITZERLAND.

Replying to Sir Robert Fowler with respect to the sentence of one hundred days' imprisonment passed upon Miss Sterling, an officer of the Salvation Army in Switzerland, Sir JAMES FERGUSSON said that he was informed that the punishment was not inflicted for conducting a children's service, but for other acts in violation of the law of the canton.

SALT SYNDICATE.

Sir George Campbell having inquired whether the advice of the law officers of the Crown had been taken respecting the combinations of capitalists to establish monopolies and to raise the price of salt and other articles,

Sir MICHAEL HICKS-BEACH said he had had no information before him to justify an appeal to the law officers of the Crown on the subject.

Mr. BRADLAUGH: Is the right hon. gentleman aware that there is a decided case of conviction in the "Law Reports" for combination to raise the price of salt?

Sir M. HICKS-BEACH: That may be. What I said was we had no information that would justify us in referring the case to the law officers. Each particular case must be dealt with on its own merits.

SUGAR BOUNTIES CONVENTION.

In reply to Mr. Picton, Mr. W. H. SMITH intimated that it would not be necessary, having regard to the time when the Special Commission on the sugar bounties is to meet, to propose any vote for the expenses of such commission. (Ministerial cheers.)

Mr. PICTON: When does the Convention come into force?

Mr. W. H. SMITH: Not during this session.

SIR CHARLES WARREN.

Mr. ATHERLEY-JONES asked the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his attention had been called to an article by the Chief Commissioner of Metropolitan Police, published in "Murray's Magazine" of this month, in which the Commissioner discusses the management and discipline of the police under his control, and makes disparaging remarks upon members of the late Government; and, whether it is in accordance with usage and discipline of the Civil Service that a salaried official should be permitted to publicly discuss matters relating to his department, and disparage the conduct of ex-Ministers of the Crown; and, if not, whether he has seen fit to take any action in the matter.

Mr. MATTHEWS: My attention has been called to the article in question, and I am assured by the Commissioner that his statements were made without reference to party. He pointed out to me one passage in which he refers to "successive" Governments, and not to any one Government in particular. As to the usages and discipline of the Civil Service in entering upon discussions of matters of public importance, I cannot do better than refer the hon. member to an answer given by the First Lord of the Treasury on March 15, where he will find the subject fully dealt with. In 1879 the then Home Secretary issued a regulation by which officers attached to the department were precluded from publishing works on matters relating to the service without permission. The present Commissioner says he was not aware of the existence of the rule. I have called his attention to it, and requested him to observe it. (Opposition cheers.)

VAN AND WHEEL TAX.

Replying to Mr. Causton, the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said he was not yet in a position to say when the bill respecting the proposed van and wheel tax would be proceeded with; but he could appreciate the natural impatience of the hon. member. (Laughter.)

Mr. CAUSTON: I should like to say it is not so much a matter of anxiety to me as to the public outside. (Laughter.)

BUSINESS.

Replying to Sir Walter Barttelot, Mr. W. H. SMITH could not say definitely when the Army and Navy Estimates would be further proceeded with. The Government were anxious first to make progress with the Civil Service votes.

NEW MEMBER.

Mr. STORMONTH DARLING, the newly-elected member for the Universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrews, was introduced by the Lord Advocate and Mr. J. A. Campbell, and took the oath in the usual manner.

SUPPLY.

The House then went into Committee of Supply upon the Civil Service Estimates.

Discussion was resumed on the vote of £185,527 for the Stationery Department.

Replying to Dr. Clark, Mr. JACKSON stated that the Government intended to act upon the recommendation of the majority of the Joint Committee appointed to consider the question of reporting the proceedings of both Houses of Parliament. Tenders had been solicited and received in pursuance of the recommendation.

After further discussion the vote was agreed to.

On the vote of £5,514 for the office of her Majesty's Woods and Forests and Land Revenue,

Mr. LABOUCHERE complained of the gross extravagance with which the department was administered, and moved the reduction of the vote by £500, in order to give the Government an opportunity of announcing whether next year they would appoint a committee to inquire into the whole question.

Mr. HANBURY supported the amendment, declaring that he for one wanted something more than economy in the abstract. The hon. member complained that the accounts were presented in a form which was very confusing, and, he feared, meant to be unintelligible. Adverting to the New Forest particularly, he remarked that the money derived from it was not sufficient to pay the expenses, and he was not surprised at that when he found land let to an ex-Minister for a term of ninety-nine years at a very cheap rent. (The hon. member indicated Sir William Harcourt amidst some laughter.) This was not a party question, and he hoped that members on both sides of the House would join together against the two front benches. (Radical cheers.)

Mr. T. ELLIS protested that the record as to Crown lands in Wales was absolutely disgraceful.

Sir WILLIAM HARCOURT said that there had been something like "smelling a job" in reference to his tenure of land in the New Forest. So far as his personal experience of Crown lands was concerned, he never yet heard any one say the rents were too low. (Laughter.) As to his occupancy, he could only say the land was in the market and he paid the price asked for it, and he hoped that explanation would be satisfactory. In considering the general administration of the New Forest it should be remembered that the property was subject to many parliamentary restrictions.

Mr. COMPTON having defended the terms of Sir William Harcourt's holding in the New Forest,

Mr. JACKSON eulogised the abilities of the Commissioners, and pointed out that, in regard to forests and parks which the public were entitled to use, it was impossible that they could produce any revenue over expenditure. The Government, however, would welcome any inquiry into the administration of Crown lands. The Government had no objection to inquiry.

After some further discussion the amendment was, by leave, withdrawn.

Replying to a number of speakers,

The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said the Government were desirous of encouraging the gold mining industry in Wales as much as possible. In fixing the royalty they had had to consider whether it would be just to the taxpayers of the country to sell the mining rights at less than their market value in order to assist the enterprise, and they had come to the conclusion that it would not. Already purchasers had been able to sell the rights to companies for considerably more than they had given for them.

The vote was agreed to, as were some others.

The Housing of the Working Classes Bill was withdrawn.

The House adjourned at ten minutes past twelve o'clock.

DREADFUL ACCIDENT AT WOOLWICH.

Early yesterday morning Colonel Ernest Henry Manningham Buller, commandant of the 2nd Battalion Rifle Brigade, and a much-respected officer, lost his life by an accident at Woolwich Dockyard Station. Deceased had gone to town on Wednesday, and returned to Woolwich by the midnight train, which leaves Charing-cross at 12.15 a.m., and reaches the Dockyard at a few minutes to one. He appears to have been alone in a first-class compartment, and is supposed to have slept. While the train was standing at the down platform of the Dockyard Station a porter on the up platform saw a man walking across the line towards him. At the same moment an engine was running up "light" to Bricklayers' Arms and struck him, hurling him a distance of 30ft. Assistance was immediately rendered, and the railway servants were horrified at discovering that the injured person was Colonel Buller. He was insensible, and, although he afterwards recovered consciousness for a time, was unable to state how the accident occurred. The door of the carriage which he had occupied was, however, found open on the wrong side, and it is conjectured that on arousing suddenly he opened that door by mistake and stepped out. He probably fell, but recovered his feet, and may have been making for the opposite platform without observing the approaching engine. He was carried on an ambulance to the Auxiliary Hospital, where he was attended to by Surgeon North, of the Army Medical Staff; he died, however, at half-past four a.m.

The coroner's inquest was held at Cambridge Barracks, Woolwich, last night, when the jury returned a verdict of accidental death, and expressed their deep sympathy with the deceased's family and brother officers. The body will be interred in Staffordshire.

RUPTURE.—ANOTHER SUFFERER COMPLETELY CURED BY HARNESS' NEW HERNIA APPLIANCES AND TREATMENT.—Mr. Robert Ford, Cowleigh-road, North Malvern, writes, Oct. 6, 1888: "In May last I placed myself under your treatment for rupture, and after four months' trial of your new appliance I may now safely say that I am completely cured. My advice to those who suffer in a similar way is to place themselves at once under your care. It will always be a very great pleasure to me to answer any inquiries with respect to my case and your treatment." Sufferers may save themselves a lifetime of torture by adopting this the only reliable treatment. Examination free by an experienced and skilful surgeon at Harness' Electropathic Establishment, 52, Oxford-street, London, W. (corner of Rathbone-place).—[ADVT.]

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless; it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." Of all Chemists, 1s. 1½d. per bottle.—[ADVERTISEMENT.]

SOFT, WHITE SKIN.—Beetham's Glycerine and Cucumber is invaluable at this season of the year for preserving the skin from the effects of frost, cold winds, and hard water. A few applications render it soft, smooth, and white, and remove all roughness, redness, and chaps. Gentlemen will find it delightfully soothing if applied after shaving.—Bottles 1s., of all Chemists. Free for 3d. extra, by the sole makers, M. Beetham and Son, Chemists, Cheltenham.—[ADVERTISEMENT.]

THE PARNELL COMMISSION.

Just as truth is said to be stranger than fiction, so this solemn trial often becomes more vividly dramatic than the wildest scenes of an impassioned playwright, and to those who have followed it closely the plot thickens, and the incidents become more and more startling. There are, no doubt, dull moments that the dramatist would "cut," but they really come almost as reliefs after such a sensation and thrilling novelty as the opening of the case yesterday. The inaugural outrage of the morning was the murder of the Huddys, bailiffs of Lord Ardilaun's beautiful estate by the waters of Lough Corrib, that so shocked the country early in 1882. These men were murdered in the presence of Kerrigan, and their bullet-riddled bodies were found a month afterwards sewn up in sacks in Lough Mask, Kerrigan having kept silence, and being himself arrested, charged with the murder, and laid in gaol for nine months. When the son of the elder of the murdered men had told how he was out day and night looking for his father's body, Kerrigan, a little Irishman of the short, swarthy type, was put in the box, and, as he very literally "had no English," Evans, the Irish interpreter, was sworn by his side, and then moved over to Mr. Biggar's corner, and, under the guidance of Mr. Atkinson, Q.C., the rich tones and quick voluble delivery of the old Irish language fell on the ears of an English tribunal. The questions were put in English, rendered at what seemed extraordinary length into Irish by the interpreter, and the answer often partook of the nature of a speech. To many Irishmen present the scene was perfectly familiar, and recalled memories of assizes and quarter sessions, but to the majority it was quite a new thing, and was watched with intense interest. Keenly and closely Mr. Harrington listened to his native tongue, into which came the two words "suspect," pronounced "soospect," and "murder"—for there is no exact Irish equivalent for these terms—and at last he sprang up and asserted that the interpreter was not simply translating the questions, but so putting them as to suggest the expected answers. It was obviously too much to ask the Court to say if a question put in Irish was of a "leading" character, and the President sharply came down on the Irish Nationalist barrister, telling him that if he discredited the oath taken by the interpreter he should go and get another interpreter, and, at all events, that he must address his observations to the Court. There was a short wrangle, and then the little dark, roughly-cropped man rolled out, with much energy and emphatic gesture, a speech which was interpreted, "I saw the Huddys being killed." Again it should be noted that the legal word "murder" does not exist in the Irish language. "How did they kill them?" said Mr. Atkinson. "Pat Higgins took a stone and struck him on the back of the head. He fell against the wall. Tom Higgins then came and put shots in them," was the answer; and then he told how, after he came out of gaol, he was "bet" (beaten) in the town of Cong. The cross-examination turned on the matter of a "trifle of money" which the witness got in gaol, and its source was suggested in diverse fashion by Sir Charles Russell and Mr. Atkinson. The wife—a little dark woman, wearing a small plaid shawl over her head—was examined in similar fashion, and the point emphasised was that she had received four pounds from a Mrs. Keating, of the Ladies' Land League in Galway, a point of which Sir Charles Russell said he should have had notice. So ended the first Irish language incident, and then the procession of policemen of various grades began again, supporting evidence given by various witnesses to the effect that their houses were burnt down when they had taken farms from which tenants had been evicted. Mr. Robert Bottrell was a landowner near Tuam, and had been shot at when driving home with his son and two daughters. That fact was all Mr. Ronan wanted, but the cross-examination went closely into the question of the value of the corn and potato crops in the "bad year," 1879—a year much relied on by Mr. Parnell's defenders. This witness also deposed that he had been summoned to appear before the "Land League Court," held in the house of one of his own tenants, which induced Mr. Justice Smith to ask if he had been summoned "by a document." However, as the "Court" in question on that occasion only sent a summons in viva voce form, the "document," which would have been interesting, was naturally not put in.

Then in order came two striking examples of different types of peasant witnesses. Burly Mathew Lennard—loud of voice, dramatic in his method of narrative—told how the "boys" came at midnight to his house, and "thronged" it; how his uninvited visitors were armed with "revolvers and carabines as good as the Queen has herself," and how they made him kneel on a coffin and pray for his soul after they had fired through his door. He was very nice about the time this outrage occurred, saying that it was between eleven and twelve, but that his clock was of the sort that is "only sometimes right." He had but a poor opinion of the police, and was "mad vexed" they did not hear the shots and come to his assistance. On the whole, he seemed to be a downright earnest witness, but this cannot be said of the thin-faced "tailler" called Connaire, who not only gave everybody, but almost got himself into, trouble. Miles-na-Coppaleen, in his interview with Father Tom, in Boucicault's play, was not "in it" with the twistings, turnings, and prevarications of this witness. He was finally treated as "hostile" by Mr. Murphy, who called him, and the Bench took a very strong view of the way he gave his evidence as detailed below. It seems that his statement had been taken in the morning by Mr. Beauchamp, solicitor, and counsel examining on his "proof" were abruptly met with such an answer as "Sure, I don't know what I heard, sir, I was fast asleep," in reply to a simple "Did you hear a shot that night?" Asked if he had said he took a Land League ticket, he replied, "I told him I got a ticket, but I was too much intoxicated." Questioned whether he had given evidence that very morning to a gentleman who was close to him, he contented himself with observing, "What gentleman?" subsequently adding, "He asked me, perhaps, but I was not on my oath that time." Of course this trifling brought up the President, who in grave tones cautioned the witness, and pressed home the point at issue. But the difficulty was not got over, for "You are going hard on me, a man of my age, sixty-eight years," was all that could be got from him. Then Mr. Justice Smith asked where he had been and whom he had seen since he gave his evidence in the morning, with the result that his lordship in very decisive tones said, "It is obvious, if you ask me, that he said one thing this morning and another in the box." Connaire only slouched on the shelf in front of him, and his attitude called forth the stern rebuke from the President, "Stand up, sir; don't lean on your elbow in that way." Then Sir Charles Russell said that he would "try his hand on the witness," but he was "not hopeful"; nevertheless he got out in his own penetrating way evidence that went to show that the witness was a man given to fighting. Still it was not over, and the Attorney-General promptly called the Irish solicitor and his shorthand clerk to prove what the man had said about his house being burnt because he had paid his rent. The suggestion was quite distinctly made that the witness had been in some way "got at," either that very day in London or in Ireland, and Sir James Hannen intimated to the Attorney-General that he should not be allowed to leave the building. "Mr. Attorney," however, did not seem inclined to move in the matter, and, unofficially of course, suggested in undertones that "his friend Sir Charles might look after him," whereupon the President intimated that he did not desire to add to the Attorney-General's responsibility, and the incident closed. Conway was a welcome contrast to Connaire, and gave his evidence touching the burning of his house after he had cut the turf of "Sir Henry Bourke, Baronet," with remarkable intelligence, his cross-examination going to show that vexed and purely local questions of "rights of turbary" were at the root of the outrage in question—according to Sir Charles Russell's instructions. The delay in the production of the next witness caused the President to comment on the fact that the Court was overcrowded, but when Mrs. Lyden did come there was an amusing bit of surprise. This poor woman of Letterfrack—a little place far away in the wilds of Connemara—was supposed to be an Irish-speaking witness, and the interpreter—not the same who angered Mr. Harrington—was duly sworn by her side. However, when Mr. Atkinson heard her say, "It's in Lyden's case I am,"—or, as some took it, "Is it a bible case?"—as she looked at the testament offered her to swear on, he asked her if she understood English, and the quick reply, "I do, indeed," made even the Court smile as the interpreter withdrew. Her sad story was to the effect that her husband was dragged out of the bed beside her, and "then they killed him with guns and pistols," and her son, twenty-one years old, met the same fate. "He was screeching as they took him out into the street," the unhappy Connemara woman said, and it was small wonder that she wept bitterly as she gave her evidence. The cross-examination was devoted to a curious little point, which is that in the very sparsely populated districts of Connemara a high road by a lonely house is always called "the street," as opposed to a lane, generally termed "boreen." Thus twice in the day the shocking evidence of eye-witnesses of murder, relatives of the victims, came before the Court. In the cross-examination of the next witness, Head-constable Butler, Mr. Parnell, who had shortly before returned to the court with Mr. George Lewis, made many suggestions to his counsel, who apparently accepted and followed them; and the last event of the day was the production of a bent up old man, Pat Small, 70 years of age, who was boycotted, for paying his rent. He was a witness of the vigorous and emphatic sort, and there was a sturdy ring in his voice when he replied to the question, "Are you still holding the farm?" with a most decisive "I am, and will!" Having told how at mass the people groaned at him when on his knees, and being cross-examined as to a family quarrel with a certain Burn, his evidence was over. He made no attempt, however, to leave the box, and evidently expected that every member of the Bar present and the three judges would favour him with questions as to his life and his grievances. There he stood, expectant and anxious to go into the whole story of the Irish question from his own point of view, and finally when Sir James Hannen waved him down from the box, he bent over and, in confidential tones, observed to the gowned usher, whom he took for a wigless barrister, "Ye haven't got half my evidence, so you haven't," and retired, obviously dissatisfied with the discreet reticence shown by Bench and Bar.

The Commissioners took their seats on the bench at half-past ten.

Mr. THOMAS HUDDY was the first witness called. In reply to Mr. Atkinson he said that he was the son of Joseph Huddy, who was bailiff on the estate of Lord Ardilaun. He lived near Lough Mask, in county Mayo. On Jan. 3, 1882, he saw his father leave home, accompanied by his nephew, for the purpose of serving ejectment notices. They drove away from the house and never returned. In consequence of a report which was made to him on the afternoon of the same day he went in search of his father and his companion, but could get no clue as to their whereabouts from man, woman, or child. Some time afterwards he saw their bodies at the court-house, and noticed wounds on his father's head and also on that of the young man.

By Sir C. Russell: Witness's father had been busy serving processes on Jan. 3 and the previous day.

MATTHIAS KERRIGAN (an Irish-speaking witness, whose evidence had to be interpreted) said he knew Thomas Higgins, who lived near him in the village of America, county Mayo. On one occasion witness went with a man named Flynn, who was a member of the Land League, to a meeting of the league in their district.

Did you pay any money to Flynn?—I gave him sixpence.

What was that for?—He said he was collecting money for the League.

Mr. Timothy Harrington (interposing): I think it would be better that the interpreter should not suggest answers to the questions.

The President: If there are any doubts as to the interpretation of the evidence you should have another interpreter.

Mr. Harrington: It is only with a view that the interpreter should not suggest the answers that I made the observation. I understand the language.

The President: Your remarks should have been addressed to the Court.

Sir Charles Russell: They were addressed to the Court, my lord.

Mr. Harrington: Yes.

The President: They did not appear to be addressed to the Court.

Sir C. Russell: Will your lordship suggest that the interpreter should simply ask the questions.

The President: Certainly, that is what he should do.

Did you become a member of the Land League yourself?—No; but I went to have a look at them.

Did you see John and Joseph Huddy on the morning that they were murdered?—I saw them at the moment of coming to the village.

Did you see them approach the house where Higgins lived?—I did not see them until they came close to his house.

Did you see anything done to them.—I did.

What?—I saw them killed.

By whom?—By Pat Higgins, Tom Higgins, and Michael Flynn.

How did they kill them?—Pat Higgins hit one with stones, and knocked him against the wall. Tom Higgins and Michael Flynn came up and put shots into them.

What was done with the bodies after the murder?—They carried them away to the water.

What did they do with them then?—I don't know.

Were you discharged from gaol before you were examined in court?—I was.

Did the people in the country know you had given evidence before you were discharged?—Yes.

When you were discharged were you given a little money?—Yes; I had a trifle on coming out of gaol.

How much?—I think £3 or £4.

Where was it given to you?—Just as I was leaving gaol.

Who gave it to you?—I do not know.

Do you know what boycotting is?—Nothing except hearing of it. I know it is bad.

What was the change in the conduct of the neighbours towards you?—If I send my cattle to the market and my pigs to the fair won't I know it then?

What is done to the cattle and the pigs?—Nothing.

Can you sell them?—I can sell them, but very badly.

Are the police protecting you?—They are.

When did the police begin to protect you?—When I left Galway gaol.

Cross-examined by Sir Charles Russell: How soon after the murder were you taken into custody?—The very night they were killed.

BRIDGET KERRIGAN, wife of the last witness, was examined in Irish through an interpreter.

Do you remember the day your husband was arrested?—Yes.

Did you get a letter from a Mrs. Keating some time after your husband was arrested?—I got a letter when he had been in gaol a good while.

After you got the letter did you go into the town of Galway?—I did; there was word to go.

Did you see Mrs. Keating in Galway?—I did.

Did Mrs. Keating give you any money?

Sir Charles Russell (interposing): I do not see the relevancy of this.

Mr. Atkinson (to witness): How much did Mrs. Keating give you?—£4 at that time.

The witness was asked by Sir C. Russell if her husband was in gaol as a "suspect" under Mr. Forster's Act. The interpreter being unable to give an Irish equivalent for "suspect," used the English word, and the reply of the witness was, "He was in for the murders."

MICHAEL RUDDY, sergeant of the Irish Constabulary, stated that he arrested Matthias Kerrigan on the charge of being concerned in the murder of the Huddys. Kerrigan was kept in custody about six weeks on that charge, and was afterwards re-arrested as a "suspect."

By Sir C. Russell: I was stationed in the West Riding of Galway.

I don't suppose you know the exact figures—but can you tell us generally whether this was going on in 1880; between January and June, 1880, had there been employed in protecting process servers 107 officers of the constabulary and 3,300 men; and were there sixteen officers and 628 men engaged in carrying out actual evictions?—I cannot say exactly the number, but I know there was a large number of police employed.

Police-sergeant DAVID KIDD was next examined by Mr. Murphy.

Do you know Mrs. Keating?—Yes.

Do you know if she was secretary or treasurer to the Ladies' Land League?—I know she was head of the Ladies' Land League in Galway.

Did you see her on any occasion give money to prisoners?—No.

Sir Charles Russell: There is no doubt she did.

Cross-examined: Do you know there were arrested some thousand persons known as suspects?—Yes.

And you know there was a public subscription got up for the support of the suspected persons in prison?—Yes; they were supported from the outside.

Mr. PATRICK BOLGER, an officer of the Irish constabulary, said he was stationed at Ascrae, in county Galway, until 1886. When he went there the country was very peaceable.

Were there any Land League branches in existence?—No.

Amongst other gentlemen there was there a Mr. Ross Mahon, a land proprietor and agent?—Yes; he lived at Weston House.

On what terms was he with his tenants?—Very good.

Was application made to reduce the rents?—Yes, the tenants wanted 6s 8d in the pound.

Was it given?—Not at first.

Did M'Loughlin pay his rent?—Yes.

What followed?—His sign was daubed with paint to show he was to be boycotted.

And was he boycotted?—Yes.

Had he a person named Malachi Farren in his employment?—Yes. Farren was one night severely beaten and complained to me of the person who had injured him.

Was that person summoned for beating him?—He was.

When he appeared at the sessions did Farren mention the name of the man?—No, he said he did not know who beat him.

He had previously mentioned the name to you?—Yes, and to the sergeant.

In March, 1882, the house of Mr. Ross Mahon was blown up?—Yes.

You saw the building the day after?—Yes, and it was in very bad condition.

Cross-examined by Sir C. Russell: Mr. Ross Mahon was a small proprietor and an agent for a considerable amount of property. Applications for rent reduction were made only on the estate of his brother, Sir Wm. Ross Mahon.

Did they get a reduction?—Not at that time.

When was the first reduction obtained?—Sir William reduced the rent a couple of months afterwards to Griffiths' valuation.

How much had the rent been above Griffiths' valuation?—I could not say.

Had there been many ejectment processes served on the property for which Mr. Mahon was agent?—None that I knew of.

You say that there was a good deal of employment in the country?—Yes.

Have you not heard of agrarian crimes in that part of Galway before 1879?—Not that I recollect.

Let me remind you of a man named Nolan being shot at?—Yes.

How far was that from Ascrae?—Nine or ten miles.

Do you remember the bailiff of Sir William Mahon being shot?—I heard of it, but that was before I came there.

When was that?—Some time in 1879.

When were you brought here first?—Last night.

Is this your first visit to London?—Yes.

Who brought you here?—Mr. Soames sent the subpœna.

Did you know of a fund called the Evicted Tenants' Fund?—Yes.

You saw in the papers to what evicted tenants these sums went?—Yes.

After the tenants had been evicted their families were maintained by these funds?—Yes.

And in some cases huts were erected for evicted tenants?—Yes.

MICHAEL CORLESS, examined by Mr. Murphy, said: I was employed as herd on the farm of Cruse, and afterwards under Mr. Mahon, the agent. I remember the time when Cruse was evicted. I was there then—August, 1881. I assisted about fifteen years on the farm. Before the eviction I was on the best of terms with the labourers, but after they were not on very good terms with me.

Did anything happen to your house after the eviction?—Yes. About June 17 or 18, 1882, there was an attempt made to burn my house. There were ten of us in it at the time—myself and wife and eight children. The fire caught the rear of the house. We got away, and there being water near we endeavoured to put it out. We had no neighbours near us. We got the fire out as well as we could. The land which had been occupied by Cruse was not let for twelve months after. I had no other means of earning a livelihood, and continued, therefore, working for Mr. Mahon. I heard of a threatening notice being posted, but I did not see it.

Cross-examined by Sir C. Russell: Cruse told me that he had occupied the land about twenty-eight years.

What age was Cruse?—Begorrah, I could not answer that. (Laughter.)

Sergeant HUGH KELLY, of the Royal Irish Constabulary, proved that he was stationed at Ascrae in May, 1882, when Morrissey's house was burned. John Rafferty was convicted for that crime.

Cross-examined by Sir C. Russell: He had heard of extensive evictions having taken place some years before, when the Pollocks' property was cleared, and some 6,000 or 7,000 people had to leave. Had never been present at an eviction where the soldiers and police made a collection for the poor people who were turned out. He had never experienced any ill-feeling between the police and the public until they were engaged at evictions.

Re-examined by the Attorney-General: The Pollock evictions took place more than twenty years before he went into the district in 1881.

Mr. ROBERT BOTTRELL said: I live near Tuam, County Galway, and am a landowner. Up to the commencement of the Land League I got on well with my tenants, and the rents were fairly well paid. Soon after the commencement of the agitation notices were posted on my property cautioning the tenants not to pay their rents, and thenceforth I had difficulties with them, and had subsequently to take proceedings against many of them. I had been able to give a great deal of employment. The place was a wreck when I took it. I rebuilt the offices and laid down miles of fences and drains. The men were paid regularly every week. On Jan. 19, 1882, I was fired at when driving home with my son and two daughters from Galway. I was about a mile from my house when a pistol shot was fired from behind a bush. No one was brought to justice for this, and afterwards a police hut stood on my premises for nearly two years.

Cross-examined by Sir C. Russell: I am not a large landowner. I have sixteen or eighteen tenants on the property where I reside, and there is another property belonging to my wife. There are in all about twenty-three tenants. I have been in possession of the property since 1870. Up to 1877 the years were reasonably prosperous. I think the distress of 1878-79 was exaggerated, and not nearly so bad as was stated.

Were not those years very bad for the small farmers?—I should not say they were very bad; but, doubtless, there was a difference in the prices.

What are your reasons for saying that was not a very bad year?—The corn crops, on which the tenants principally rely for the payment of the rents, were not so bad, but the potato crops, on which they rely for the sustenance of their families, were bad.

Then the crop that was to pay the rent did not suffer, and it was merely the crop on which they relied for subsistence that was bad?—Yes; the potato crop was an inferior one.

When did you first make any reduction?—I don't remember.

Did your tenants take you into the Land Court?—Not until 1884 or 1885.

Up to that time you had made no reduction in the rents?—No.

What reduction was made?—None in some instances, and a small reduction in others. Twenty per cent. was the highest.

In further cross-examination the witness admitted that in a number of cases similar reductions had been made on the property of his wife. There were smaller reductions on his own estate.

Sir C. Russell: Did you get any loans during the period of distress.

Witness: No; I found the money out of my own pocket.

Have you ever expended one farthing on your tenants' property since you have held it?—No; there was no necessity.

Did some of your tenantry get relief?—The whole of the country got it.

Sir C. Russell: Answer my question. Did some of your tenants get it?

Witness: Yes.

Did you honestly dispense the money of other people?—I did.

How much did you distribute amongst your tenants?—Only three, I think, got relief. One was a widow, the second was a man with a "long family." (Laughter.) That means a large family; it is the usual expression in that district. The third was a widow.

Did you forgive your tenants any of their rents?—No; I was never asked.

Did you wipe off any of the arrears?—There were no arrears up to that time. They had paid the 1879 rent.

Re-examined by the Attorney-General: His total income from the tenants on his own estate would be only £60 or £70 a year. There had been no complaints as to the payment of rent up to 1879.

Did you identify the man who shot at you?—No, the night was dark. But I knew he was one of the two men who had arms in the district.

Was there a Land League in your neighbourhood?—There was. The postmaster of the district was president.

By Sir C. Russell: As tenant myself I have not applied for a reduction of rent, but I obtained one when there was a general reduction. The local Land League met in the room of one of my tenants, and I was also summoned there before the Land League Court, which, however, I did not attend. (Laughter.) The proceedings of the Land League Court were not published in the papers. I was summoned because I had dismissed a herd for neglect of duty. I left him in his house.

By the Attorney-General: The Land League Court was held in one of your tenants' houses?—Yes.

Had you been on good terms with that tenant previously?—Perfectly.

When were you summoned before the Land Court?—Before the shooting, some two months.

Mr. Justice Smith.—Did they issue a document, summoning you?

Witness.—They merely sent one of my tenants with a message to appear before them, as they wanted to ascertain the reason of the herd's dismissal, although it was well known in the neighbourhood.

Mr. CORNELIUS HIGNEY, farmer, near Portumna, county Galway, stated that in 1869 he purchased the lease of some land from the father-in-law of James Fahy. From that year he lived on the farm without hindrance or annoyance until 1887. In the latter year a notice protesting against landgrabbing was posted on his property.

You attended a Land League Court at Loughrea?—Yes.

Who were present?—Father Egan and John Sweeney.

What was said to you at that meeting?—My case was heard. It was about the purchase of the tenant's interest for £100 from the father-in-law of Fahy. Father Egan and Sweeney condemned Fahy's claim to the estate, and decided in my favour. Subsequently I appeared before the convention in Dublin, and they also condemned Fahy's claim, and sent a letter to the Loughrea branch.

Did you find any change on your return from Dublin in the demeanour of the people towards you?—Yes; they shouted at me and groaned. They were reproved by the Roman Catholic bishop, who said that it was no case for boycotting.

Cross-examined by Sir C. Russell: I was a member of the Local National League. I went to the meeting of the Land League, and Father Egan and John Sweeney both said that Fahy had no ground of complaint. They sent Fahy about his business, and hoped they would never hear about the matter again. After that some one communicated with the Land League at Dublin. I went to Dublin of my own accord, and told Mr. Quinn, the assistant secretary, my story. Mr. Quinn told me to summon the men who annoyed me to the Petty Sessions.

Mr. FREDERICK WADE: I am a district inspector of constabulary, and stationed at Portumna. Since 1885 I have received the notices (produced) from various constables under my charge. They were found in the neighbourhood of Higney's farm.

Mr. Atkinson here read some of the notices handed in. The following was one: "Don't boycott Con Higney, the grabber that grabbed Fahy's farm; Edward Maloney, the shopkeeper at Portumna, that is supporting Higney, the spy. No one go into his house on fair day."

MATHEW LENNARD, a gamekeeper employed by Mr. Bodkin, Kilcooney, co. Galway, stated that there was a tenant named Mannion on the estate. He was evicted in 1880 for non-payment of rent, and shortly after that a number of people visited the witness's house late at night. They knocked at the door and asked to be admitted. Witness inquired, "Who is that?" They said, "The police." He answered, "There is no need for any police to come to my house, and if there is, they may stop till morning. Once I close my door, I am not in the habit of letting anybody in." They said, "You won't let us in," and no sooner were the words uttered than a shot was fired in, then another, and another.

Through the door?—Through the door and the window.

Did they say anything then?—They asked if I would not let them in, and I said, "As long as I have 100 shots by me I will not."

Did you ultimately let them in?—Yes. They said if I did not they would get paraffin oil and burn the house and the offices, and, rather than they should do that, I said I would let them in.

When you let them in was there a crowd?—The house was thronged, and there would be 500 outside.

Were they disguised?—No; they were fine-looking men, dressed in good clothes.

Had they nothing on their face?—Not a ha'p'orth, only fine moustaches. (Laughter.)

Had they arms with them?—Plenty of them.

What kind?—They had revolvers and carbines as good as the Queen has. (Laughter.)

Did they do anything to you?—They did. They were going to put me in a coffin.

Did they bring the coffin with them?—They did. It was a big one. (Laughter.)

What did they say to you?—They made me pray for my soul, and go on my knees on the coffin. Then they took off the lid of it, and said it was a great shame for me to be carrying lies to my master, and to go and buy such a man's holding as James Mannion's. I said that was the greatest mistake that ever was. I had never intended or thought of buying Mannion's land, and if I wished to have another holding I would not take that, even if I had it for nothing. I had more than I could manage of my own. Some of them said, "Quite right," and others said they were going away to another place.

Did they administer any oath to you?—No.

You did not take Mannion's farm after that?—No; the same farm was no good to any one.

What did they say when they went away?—They said I was not to leave my house till the morning, or I would suffer, as they were leaving two men watching outside.

The President: You said something about the people who came into your house having large whiskers and moustaches?

Witness: They were dressed in every way.

Do you mean that they wore false moustaches?—I marked them well, and I could not say that they had any false moustaches.

The Court then adjourned for luncheon.

On the sitting being resumed,

THOMAS CONNAIRE, examined by Mr. Murphy, said: I live about four miles from Loughrea, and am a tenant on the estate of Sir Henry Burke. On the night of Nov. 26, 1881, my house was visited by a party of men.

Did you hear a report of a gun?—Sure, I don't know what I heard; I was fast asleep. (Laughter.)

Were you on good terms with your neighbours?—Myself and my wife and children had not spoken to our nearest neighbours for the last twelve years. (Laughter.) I don't know anything about the others.

You claimed compensation for your house being burned, and you alleged that your offence was that you had paid your rent?—No, I did not. I wanted help to get it put right.

Was not Martin Murphy's house burnt the same night?—I don't know anything about Murphy's house, or whether he had paid his rent.

Have you not taken a Land League ticket since your house was burnt?—Never. A son of mine who went to America took one for me; but I don't know whether it was before or after my house was burnt.

Did you not in making your statement this morning say you had taken a Land League ticket?—I said that I went to a meeting at Loughrea, and afterwards found I had a ticket, but that I was so intoxicated that I did not know if I had paid for it. (Laughter.) I don't know what sort of a ticket it was.

Did you not say it was a Land League ticket?—I can neither read nor write, and don't know if it was a Land League ticket or not.

Did you not say that you had attended a Land League meeting at Loughrea?

The President: You are asked a question, and we will have an answer.

The reply being vague and unintelligible, the question was again put, and the witness cautioned to be careful.

Witness: My lord, you are very hard on a man of my age (sixty-eight) to expect me to remember things that took place so long ago. I was not on my oath at the time.

The President: And now you are on your oath, which you say you respect. Was it a Land League meeting you were being examined about this morning?

Witness: Well, I don't know anything about it. I was at Loughrea, and stood in the middle of the street listening. I got tired, and went to a public-house, and when I got home I found I had the card.

The President: What did you say to the police about your house being burned?

Witness: I could not remember what I said to them.

Mr. Justice Smith: Has anybody been speaking to you since this morning about your evidence?

Witness: Nobody has been speaking to me but a man who is a policeman.

Sir C. Russell: I am instructed that we have not a single witness here. I wish to follow up Mr. Justice Smith's suggestion.

Mr. Justice Smith: I am not suggesting that any gentleman on your side has been getting at the witness, but it is quite clear that he has made one statement this morning and another one here, and I was anxious to find out the reason.

Cross-examined by Sir C. Russell: I was bound over to keep the peace with my neighbours, the Walshes, about five years ago, and have not spoken to them since. No one complained to me or threatened me because I had paid my rent. The police asked me if I would claim compensation, but I never said to any one that my house was burnt down because I had paid my rent.

Mr. W. M. BEAUCHAMP, examined by Mr. Murphy, said: I am a solicitor practising at Limerick, and have been acting for Mr. Soames in certain matters connected with this case. I took the witness Connaire's statement this morning, when he said that the malice he alleged was due to the payment of his rent. He said he had got a Land League card, and had paid for it, and that he had attended a League meeting at Loughrea.

Cross-examined by Sir C. Russell: Connaire's story was taken down by a shorthand writer, but not in the form of question and answer.

The President (to the Attorney-General): You will be good enough to follow up the other part as to what he said to the police, and get the papers in the case. Here is a very distinct contradiction, and I should like to know what becomes of it. Don't let the witness Connaire leave till that has been done.

The Attorney-General: Perhaps Sir Charles Russell will take charge of him. (Laughter.)

Sub-Inspector BARRY, recalled, said: My impression is that the motive assigned by Connaire for the burning of his house was that he had paid his rent, but I cannot go further than that. The papers will be sent for.

WILLIAM CONWAY, examined by Mr. Ronan, said: In 1886 I was living on Sir Henry Burke's estate, near Woodford, and on May 15 my house was burned down. I believe the only reason was that I had cut turf for Sir H. Burke.

Cross-examined by Sir C. Russell: Nineteen or twenty other men were cutting turf for Sir H. Burke, but their houses were not burned. There had been a dispute as to the right to cut turf.

At this point there was some delay in the production of witnesses, due in part, as the Attorney-General said, to the crowded state of the passages leading into the court.

The President: The court is really too crowded. There are more persons in the court than there ought to be.

Mrs. LYDEN, a widow, was examined by Mr. Atkinson. An interpreter was sworn, but though the witness protested she could not speak English, she answered with considerable fluency. She said: I am the widow of John Lyden. In 1881 my husband was looking after a farm at Letterfrack for a Mr. Graham. A tenant named Walsh had been evicted from the farm. Up to April, 1881, my husband was on good terms with the neighbours, but on the night of the 24th of that month a number of men came to the house and dragged my husband out of bed. When they got him outside they shot at and killed him with guns or revolvers. When they had killed him they dragged my boy out. He was screaming and crying. They also fired at him, and thought that they had killed him, but he was not killed. He died a month afterwards from the wounds he received that night. (The witness here burst into tears.) I do not know any of the men who came to the house, but I think they were neighbours.

Cross-examined by Sir C. Russell: Mrs. Walsh, who had been evicted from the farm, was a widow, and one of her sons was tried and hanged for the murder of my husband.

MICHAEL BUTLER, a head-constable, said: I was stationed at Letterfrack during this time. A policeman named Cavanagh, who was working up evidence in the Lyden case, was shot by one of the young Walshes, who was afterwards transported. I do not know that either of the Walshes were members of the Land League.

PATRICK SMALL was next examined. He said: I took a farm near Aughrim from which Tom Burn had been evicted. After this young Burn used to follow me about and outbid me at the fairs when I went to buy cattle. I have been boycotted, and cannot get my horses shod. The blacksmith said he would not put the country against him for the sake of my custom. I am still under police protection.

Are you still holding the farm?—I am, and will. (Laughter.) I am a Catholic, bred and born, but I cannot go to mass because the people call me names and groan at me in chapel.

The Commissioners rose shortly before four o'clock.

A USEFUL HINT.—If British housekeepers, instead of purchasing the commonest of common matches, because they are low priced and thought to be cheap, would use none but matches bearing Bryant and May's name, they would not only get the best value for their money, but would enable Bryant and May to pay thousands of pounds more weekly in wages; and in that way the British housekeepers would be doing real good to the working classes of the East-end of London.—(ADVERTISEMENT.)

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL.

The sympathy expressed for Mr. J. L. Toole in his recent affliction has been as widespread as it is certainly sincere. He has been compelled to postpone for the present all his urgent provincial engagements. The funeral of the late Miss Florence Toole will take place to-day, at Kensal-green Cemetery, when she will be buried by the side of her only brother, Frank, who died nine years ago.

Typhoid fever has of late been marking down victim after victim well known and respected in the dramatic, musical, and literary world. Mr. Michael Gunn is only just pronounced convalescent from a severe attack, and has been removed from his hotel in London to his house in Dublin; and we regret to learn that Mr. Henry Sampson, the editor and proprietor of the Referee, is seriously ill from typhoid at Brighton.

There have been four representatives of "Sweet Lavender." The last is Miss Blanche Horlock, who has recovered from a serious attack of typhoid fever, and is now playing with considerable charm at Terry's Theatre, and to the satisfaction of the author. Miss Horlock's predecessors in this pretty character were Miss Rose Norreys, Miss Eva Wilson, and Miss Edith Chester.

An industriously circulated rumour to the effect that Mr. John Hare intends shortly to give up the part of the bewildered and brow-beaten husband in the amusing play "Mamma," at the Court, in order that he may pioneer the comedy on a tour through the provinces, may promptly and with authority be contradicted. Mr. Hare has had many excellent offers to take "Mamma" to the large provincial towns, where his clever acting is sure to be appreciated, but he certainly cannot spare more than six or eight weeks of his time, and that not before next autumn. It is certain, therefore, that, granted good health, Mr. Hare will be seen at the Court Theatre until his services are imperatively demanded at his new "Garrick" Theatre. Mr. Grundy's version of "Les Surprises du Divorce" has won an emphatic success.

"Brantinghame Hall" is the title chosen for Mr. W. S. Gilbert's promised comedy, now in active rehearsal at the St. James's Theatre, and it is likely to be produced in about three weeks' time—probably on a Wednesday. The play, as stage managers say, is "shaping well" at the rehearsals, conducted of course by the author, and it is no breach of confidence to say that the story will be found as simple as it is sympathetic, that the dialogue is reported to be in the author's best style, that Miss Julia Neilson has been provided with a very powerful character—and that, best of all, the tone of the comedy is English and wholesome. The services of Miss Rose Norreys have been secured for an important character in the new piece.

A strong cast has been secured by Mr. Alfred Calmour for his last century comedy "The Widow Winsome," which will be produced at a Criterion matinée on Nov. 27, with costumes correctly illustrating the year 1750, and original incidental music by Mr. F. Bucalossi. The principal characters will be taken by Mr. H. H. Conway, Mr. William Farren, Mr. Fred Thorne, Mr. Compton Coutts, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. W. Farren, jun., Mr. George Giddens, Miss Fanny Robertson, Miss Gertrude Kingston, Miss Laura Linden, and Miss Kate Rorke. If other engagements permit, Mr. Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore will make the afternoon additionally interesting by appearing in a comedietta.

At the new Shaftesbury Theatre, it was originally intended that "As You Like It" should be followed by a revival of "Measure for Measure," but the next production will be "The Lady of Lyons," in which Miss Wallis will play Pauline, Mr. Forbes Robertson Claude Melnotte, and Mr. Macintosh Colonel Damas. The management does not intend to make this an occasion for what is popularly termed "a production," but the old play will, under Mr. John Lancaster's direction, be prettily decorated, well dressed, and carefully cast.

Another new play, the author of which has modestly concealed his name, will be produced under the direction of Mr. Horace Sedger, and with the sanction of Mr. Wyndham, at the Criterion Theatre at the end of the month. It is a farcical comedy, called "The Deputy Registrar," and in the cast will be found Messrs. Herbert Standing, Alfred Maltby, Henry Ashley, Stephen Caffrey, Miss Annie Hughes, and Miss Susie Vaughan.

The authors of that successful play "The Barrister"—Messrs. Darnley and George Manville Fenn—announce a matinée at Terry's Theatre next Tuesday, Nov 13, when will be produced their second farcical comedy, which they have called "The Balloon."

In these energetic days playgoers look ahead. Several applications have already been made at the West-end libraries for Gaiety seats to welcome back Miss E. Farren and Mr. F. Leslie, who are not due until the early part of next year.

At the last moment, in consequence of insufficient preparation, the first performance of Mr. Pettitt's drama, "Hands Across the Sea," announced for production last night at the Princess's Theatre, was postponed until to-morrow evening.

The new and handsome London club house of the popular Lyric Club, next door to the Prince of Wales' Theatre, in Piccadilly East, will open for the reception of members on Saturday, Nov. 17. On the previous evening a soirée has been fixed at ten p.m., an invitation to which his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has graciously accepted. A limited number of "ladies' tickets," applied for by members, will be allotted by the committee by ballot on this special occasion. The pretty club house at Barnes will be reopened on May 1 next year, and Mr. Luther Munday, the musical manager, has arranged an elaborate series of smoking concerts, soirées, and ladies' concerts at the town and country houses on Sundays, Fridays, and Thursdays during the winter and summer seasons.

The directors of the Alhambra have entered into an exclusive engagement with M. Gilbert, the well-known Anglo-French comic singer from the Eldorado, Paris, who will on Monday next, Nov. 12, appear and sing "Le Père de la Victoire," his latest Parisian success.

Mr. Hengler and Mr. Freeman Thomas will combine at Christmas to give the children a capital circus at Covent-garden. The Argyll-street circus will remain closed, and as anything in the shape of a pantomime would clash with the interests of Old Drury, next door, the Covent-garden directorate have arranged a sensation of the hour which will be known as the "Baldwin Pony," to be dropped down from a balloon that will ascend to the "gods" in the gallery.

Miss Rosa Kenney—daughter of the late Charles Lamb Kenney, critic, dramatist, and journalist—announces an afternoon recital at the Steinway Hall, on Thursday, Nov. 15. Miss Ada Cavendish (Mrs. Frank Marshall), Mr. Aubrey Boucicault, and Miss Rosa Kenney will recite, and among the singers will be found Madame Edith Wynne and Miss Patrice Boucicault.

Madame Valleria goes to Bournemouth on Saturday, Nov. 17, to assist at Mrs. Charles Yates's morning concert, which takes place in the new Winter Gardens attached to the Mont Dore Hotel. The other artistes on that occasion will be Mrs. Bernard Beere, Miss Hope Temple, Miss Hirtzel, Mr. Isidore de Lara, Mr. Herbert Thorndike, and Mr. Wilhelm Ganz.

It is said that Sir Arthur Sullivan has undertaken to write an orchestral symphony for the Leeds Festival of next year. Should he carry out his purpose the wishes of those who have long desired a successor to the Symphony in E, composed more than a quarter of a century ago, will be gratified.

Miss Pattie Winter, who has during the past twelve months been studying singing under Mr. San Giovanni, at Milan, is again in England prepared to resume her professional career.

Great and important changes are about to be made in the organ at the Birmingham Town Hall. The instrument is a historic one, being that used at the first performance of "Elijah" in 1846, but its mechanism, though considered perfect fifty years ago, has become antiquated. We understand that the latest improvements are about to be introduced and other alterations made, at a cost of nearly £3,000.

The orchestral symphony by Professor Villiers Stanford, soon to be produced in Berlin, was originally, we believe, designed for first performance at the Crystal Palace, but the intention could not conveniently be carried out. A satisfactory feature in the present arrangement is the renewed recognition of British talent by the somewhat exclusive musicians of Germany.

The receipts from the sale of tickets, donations, &c., in connection with the recent Birmingham Festival were in round numbers £800 less than those from the same sources three years ago. We hear that, setting donations aside, the income is about £200 less than the outgoings. With regard to the festival of 1891 nothing has yet been decided, but it is understood that strenuous efforts will be made to secure important works by composers of eminence. Why not apply again to Mr. Dvorak and Dr. Mackenzie? Perhaps Sir Arthur Sullivan would "oblige."

Mr. Charles Oberthür's prelude to Keating's dramatic poem, entitled "Shakespeare, a Winter Night's Dream," was given, under the direction of Capellmeister Stahl, at the last symphony concert of the Gewerbehaus Kapelle. The Dresden Journal speaks of Mr. Oberthür's interesting composition as being both melodious and effectively scored for the orchestra. The ability of the Kapelle orchestra was manifested on the same occasion by a fine interpretation of Beethoven's "Pastoral Symphony." Mr. Oberthur is now making a tour in Germany, where his performances on the harp, the instrument of his predilection, are generally appreciated. Invited by her Majesty the Queen of the Belgians, Mr. Oberthur will on his way homewards visit the Château de Laeken, where he conducts a performance of his "National quartet for four harps," the Queen, herself an accomplished harpist, taking a leading part therein.

A letter from the father of little Josef Hofmann gives favourable news of the musical prodigy. Benefiting by the rest he is enjoying, and the attention bestowed on him by his family, the lad is so far recovered as to be allowed by his medical adviser to practise daily on the pianoforte. Further time, however, is needed for the strengthening of his nervous system, and until complete recovery takes place his friends will not entertain any offer of engagement for his appearance in public.

Circumstances have induced Madame Essipoff to postpone her pianoforte recital, announced for the 20th inst., to Thursday, the 29th of the present month.

Madame Minnie Hauk intends leaving this country next week to fulfil engagements in Russia. The popular artist purposes, however, to return early in January for a lengthened tour in the provinces.

A farewell concert will be given by Madame Marie Roze in St. James's Hall on Feb. 25. Four days after, the gifted prima donna takes her departure for Australia, carrying with her the good wishes of the many who have been charmed by her art.

On Jan. 12 Madame Albani will leave England for a concert tour in Canada. Madame Albani will be accompanied by Miss Damian and Mr. Barrington Foote.

During the winter a series of recitals will be given in the Steinway Hall by Mr. Max Heinrich, an American baritone, whose reception here has been so favourable as to induce him to take up his residence in this country. The first recital will be held early in December, when Mr. Heinrich will be assisted by a pianist of distinction.

Some few years have elapsed since Madame Antoinette Sterling took part in a performance of oratorio in London. Her appearance, therefore, in a work of that high order will partake somewhat of a novelty. We congratulate the directors of the Novello Concerts on securing her services for the contralto part of Handel's "Messiah," to be given on Dec. 18 in St. James's Hall.

Amongst the solo instrumentalists already engaged by Mr. Henschel for the London Symphony Concerts are: Miss Fanny Davies, Miss Emily Shinner, Miss Geraldine Morgan, Mr. Johann Kruse, and Mr. Max Pauer.

A pianoforte recital will be given in Princes' Hall on the 28th inst. by Mr. Ralph Stuart. Avoiding the mistake made by him last season, the pianist will not this time exclude from his programme the name of every composer except that of Chopin.

For the first time in London a new overture, entitled "A.D. 1812," by Tschaikowsky, will be performed, under the direction of Mr. Henschel, during the forthcoming season of the London Symphony Concerts.

NAVAL VOLUNTEER DEFENCE.

At the fortnightly meeting of the Executive Committee of the Naval Volunteer Defence Association some important statements were made as to the progress of the work. Admiral Colomb presided, and there were present Major-General E. Harding Steward, Sir John Colomb, M.P., and Sir Lambton Loraine, and others. The chairman stated that since the last meeting an application had been made to the Admiralty by the association for leave to form a corps of Royal Naval Artillery Volunteers at Grimsby, in pursuance of a resolution passed at a meeting of their branch committee at Grimsby, over which the Earl of Yarborough presided. A similar request had been made from the Hull district, and both communications are under the consideration of the authorities. The report of the meeting held and the resolutions passed at Brighton on the 26th ult. were read.

It was reported by the Hon. Mr. Brassey that at Sunderland he had started a branch, with the Marquis of Londonderry as president, and that he had made arrangements for a public meeting at Glasgow, where there would be a very strong branch council. From Middlesborough also there were promises of support. Letters from the officer commanding the Royal Naval Artillery Volunteers at Swansea as to their efforts to secure vessels for the use of his corps and from the officer in charge of the Coast Guard at Folkestone were laid before the meeting. It was also announced that Earl Derby would probably accompany Earl Cowper (the president of the association) to the public meeting to be held on Nov. 16, at Liverpool, under the presidency of the Mayor, when the speakers would include Lord Brassey, Sir George Baden-Powell, and Admiral Colomb.

One of the most interesting subjects under consideration was that of the disposal in time of war of the vessels provided by localities and armed by the association in concert with the Admiralty. For some time past the association has been seeking a distinct expression of the views of their lordships on this point, and the following official statement gave considerable satisfaction to the committee, and will be a guarantee to localities that their self-provided defence will remain their own, and not be liable to requisition by any naval commander-in-chief at a time when most required for the defence of their town and shipping. The following is the letter referred to:

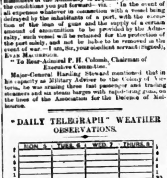
"Admiralty, Nov. 5, 1888.

"Sir—In reference to your letter of the 25th Oct., asking as to the disposal of vessels intended for defence of particular ports, I am commanded by my Lord Commissioners of the Admiralty to acquaint you that under the conditions you put forward—viz.: 'In the event of all expenses whatever in connection with a vessel being defrayed by the inhabitants of a port, with the exception of the loan of guns and the supply of a certain amount of ammunition to be provided by the Admiralty,' such vessel will be retained for the protection of the port solely, and not be liable to be removed in the event of war.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant (Signed), Evan Macgregor.

"To Rear-Admiral P. H. Colomb, Chairman of Executive Committee."

Major-General Harding Steward mentioned that in his capacity as Military Adviser to the Colony of Victoria, he was arming three fast passenger and trading steamers and six steam barges with rapid-firing guns, on the lines of the Association for the Defence of Melbourne.

"DAILY TELEGRAPH" WEATHER OBSERVATIONS.



The above chart represents the movement of the barometer, corrected for sea level and reduced to 32° F., during the four days ending at midnight, Nov. 5-8.

North London Technical Institutes.—At a meeting of the Court of the Worshipful Company of Clothworkers, held on Wednesday last, it was resolved to contribute £2,500 towards this scheme, to be apportioned thus: £2,000 towards an institute in Islington, where the company have a considerable estate as trustees of the Packington Charity, as well as in their own corporate right, and £500 towards one in Hackney, where they also possess property, limited, however, to specific charitable trusts. It is hoped that this example will be followed by the other City companies and landed proprietors in the four boroughs which constitute the North of London, according to the Charity Commissioners' scheme, so that the £200,000 promised conditionally by the Commissioners may be speedily secured.

Yesterday the following vessels of the Mediterranean Squadron arrived at Malta from the Piræus: Alexandra (flagship of his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh), Benbow, Edinburgh, Temeraire, Sultan, and Carysfort.

MR. GLADSTONE IN THE MIDLANDS.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

BIRMINGHAM, Thursday Night.

Miles of men and women, miles of shouting, miles of flags, triumphal arches, garlands, and streamers—these were the features of Mr. Gladstone's Black Country drive to-day, and the occasion is likely to remain long in the memory of those who witnessed it. The morning, raw and cold, was by no means such as would, under ordinary conditions, have been selected for open carriage exercise by an old man of seventy-eight, especially if there seemed any probability of his having to go much of the distance bare-headed. But Mr. Gladstone, who en route was congratulated on "the youthfulness of his old age," does not exist under ordinary conditions. He knows what it is to be, as he said last night, in "the rigid grasp of political necessity," and some such constraining force, I may assume, sent him careering through the Midlands this dark and unpleasant day as fast as crowds of people would let four horses draw him. The demonstration, for such it was, had been carefully got up, and all the machinery at the command of the right hon. gentleman's Black Country followers was set at work to ensure its success. It is only fair to say, however, that no mere political organisation could have done what the sympathy of the population achieved. Even more suggestive of Mr. Gladstone's hold upon the masses than the remarkable scene in Bingley Hall, the Black Country demonstration was a fitting sequel to the Birmingham campaign.

After receiving an address from the Birmingham Irish National Club, and making the inevitable speech thereanent, Mr. Gladstone was escorted to New-street Station, whence a special train conveyed him in a few minutes to West Bromwich, the point on the border of the Black Country selected for the beginning of his drive. All West Bromwich was agog, of course, but the police kept the railway station and its precincts clear of all save authorised persons, and the reception of the ex-Prime Minister took place in complete comfort. It was a wholly informal business. When the special drew up at the carpeted platform a lane was formed by the privileged spectators, through which Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone, with their host and hostess, Mr. P. Stanhope, M.P., and the Countess Tolstoi, passed into a waiting-room, to be received by many of the "faithful" from the surrounding districts with very hearty cheers. No time was cut to waste here, and, indeed, much credit is due to the Black Country politicians for the businesslike fashion in which they got through what they had to do. In the waiting-room Mr. Gladstone was presented with nine addresses from neighbouring associations, of which only that from the Staffordshire Liberal Council was read. The rest were despatched in a summary way, carried out by a gentleman with a stentorian voice, who shouted in each case: "The next address is from 'somewhere,' presented by 'So-and-so.'" Upon which "So-and-so" could be heard murmuring a few more or less embarrassed words. Addresses were not the only things presented. One gentleman gave a pair of photograph frames made of cast-iron, overlaid with silver, as an example of what South Staffordshire could do with "pig"; and a representative of the Bilston Liberal Association was at hand with a beautiful terra-cotta "dumb waiter." It is hardly necessary to state that all this moved Mr. Gladstone to another speech, and one of the happiest of his short addresses. After a reference to local matters he returned to his old complaint against the property vote and the way in which owners of property can multiply themselves at elections. This brought Mr. Gladstone into an anecdotal vein, taking him back to a long ago performance at the Haymarket Theatre, with vivid recollection of a petty German potentate, termed by Mr. Buckstone an "Arch-Hedgehog," who having an army of two men so drilled them in running from place to place that there seemed to be a considerable force. The story was told in Mr. Gladstone's best manner, and that everybody laughed consumedly at it goes without saying. But the narrator reminded his hearers that the manœuvres of the property voters in 1886 had results not conducive to merriment, whereupon everybody said "Hear, hear," and looked grave. At the close of the right hon. gentleman's remark there was a general move to the station yard, where Mr. P. Stanhope's carriage, drawn by four horses, with an escort of mounted police, was in waiting. Other vehicles were there too, but the procession they formed was quite impromptu. Anybody "cut in" behind the carriage with the postilions; and, as a matter of fact, Mr. Gladstone's suite for the journey comprised almost everything on wheels from a drag to a tradesman's cart. On clearing the station the streets of West Bromwich were found in possession of an enthusiastic crowd, flags waving from the houses on either hand, and a triumphal arch spanning the road at a convenient spot. Little time was given for observation. The four horses went at speed, and the retinue had all it could do to keep up. In a little while the Black Country was fairly entered upon, the drive for miles thenceforward being a long and apparently interminable avenue of workmen's houses, with sometimes far-reaching streets and lanes on either hand—a very hive of workers swarming with humanity. Those new to the Black Country must have been impressed, and not a little saddened, by the spectacle which met their eyes, for the country all along the route, pleasant enough in its pristine state, has been given over by the necessities of industry to the abomination of desolation. Whenever a break occurred in the long array of humble dwellings the eye ranged along a darksome land, billowy with heaps of rubbish, above which rose a forest of tall chimneys, flying long streamers of black smoke against the sombre sky. No trees, no grass deserving the name, no nature in its sweetness and freshness, nothing but an exaggerated effect of the sentence, that "in the sweat of his brow shall man eat bread." The true wonder of the scene, however, was the populace that had come out to cheer the "Grand Old Man"—a populace fresh from the mine and the workshop, grimy men, grimy women, grimy children, even as all things in that region are grimy. Dwellers in more favoured places may excusably wonder whether life in the Black Country is worth living, and indeed, with Bill Nye, raise a question about the success of our civilisation: but it seemed very unsafe thus to speculate in the hearing of the thousands who thronged Mr. Gladstone's route, and obviously so much enjoyed themselves. It was wonderful to see how the people had got into sympathy with the occasion. Blue and white are the Liberal colours of the district, and the combination everywhere met the eye. Women and children waved blue and white from windows and doorways; the colours floated from poles and chimneys, and could be seen far away down the lanes and roadways that opened on the route. Other decorations there were, sometimes of the most primitive and incongruous character—nay, some of them were even pathetic. There is very little greenery in the black country, but of that little the people gave what they could, in one case digging a lot of leeks from a smutty garden and stringing them across the road. In another instance a leafless oak branch had been obtained from somewhere, decked with ribbons and suspended over the via triumphalis. Then there were innumerable banners of blue and white calico, inscribed with words of honour and welcome, exhausting the English language to that end. Of course, in populous places like Wednesbury, Darlaston, and Bilston, the demonstration reached a climax, with triumphal arches of an elaborate and costly character, with vistas of flags and banners, and house fronts eloquent with words of greeting. Here, moreover, organised bodies, in one case accompanied by a brass band, appeared upon the scene, causing a short halt for interchange of courtesies between the old leader and his admirers. A remarkable feature was the apparent unanimity of the population, who swarmed over the miles traversed. I listened for sounds of disapprobation, but heard none. The great hives of industry emptied themselves for the occasion of only those who could cheer and cheer again: of those who, swarming from every road, and lane, and alley, acclaimed the venerable statesman as he rapidly passed with head bared to the keen wind. Mr. Gladstone has had many triumphs in the course of his long career, but very few so remarkable in character and circumstances as that which fell to him this day. It was a homely triumph, destitute of anything like pomp, or state, or formality. The passage of a statesman through an immense workshop, where nobody had "dressed" to receive him. The Black Country may be said to end near Sedgley, at which place the amenities of nature begin to have play, and there I left the procession to pursue its course through a gathering fog in the direction of Mr. Philip Stanhope's residence.

Yesterday morning Mr. Gladstone received, at the residence of Sir W. Foster, Birmingham, a deputation of Irish residents in Birmingham and district, who waited upon him with an address from the Irish National Club. Councillor Loughton introduced the deputation, which included the Rev. Father Sherlock and Professor Windle. An address was presented, in which it was set forth that from no other man's hand would the gift which Irishmen craved come so acceptably as from Mr. Gladstone's. In his reply the right hon. gentleman said: I entirely agree with and understand the satisfaction that must be felt by those gentlemen who are able to say that they have been in favour of Home Rule for a very great length of time—for threescore and ten years, as Father Sherlock told us in his own case. A recollection of that kind almost joins on to that national sentiment of the Irish people before the Union which marks, in my opinion, the very noblest time in the history of Ireland—the period of Lord Fitzwilliam's Administration. I mean the time when the Protestant Parliament of Ireland joyously and not only willingly passed the demand of Roman Catholics to the franchise, and when they were ready to go on reforming the Parliament and admit Roman Catholics within its walls. That I think the noblest period of the history of Ireland. It was wasted and frustrated, and it was reversed, I grieve to say, by the party of ascendency in Ireland, unfortunately adopted, petted, patronised, and sustained in all its iniquities by the British Government of that time. But I wish you to bear in mind this: It is one thing for an Irishman to be a Home Ruler, but it is a different thing for an English politician sitting in the House of Commons. However good Home Rule may be, it is, in my opinion, an essential condition, in order to warrant the granting of it, that it should be asked for by the representatives of Ireland in the constitutional form provided by our institutions. (Hear, hear.) We have great evils and great grievances remaining in Ireland, as far as I can judge and distinguish between grievances and mere wants—because I admit the legislation of Ireland in many respects is in a backward state, and cannot be brought into a proper state except by the agency of its own people, its own children sitting in Dublin, by people who have the feelings towards Ireland that children ought to have to a mother. But what are the positive evils? They may, I think, be summed up thus: First of all, there is coercion; secondly, there is an administrative system thoroughly anti-national in its methods; and, thirdly, there is the absence of the power in Ireland of managing their own affairs according to their own ideas. Great progress has been made. If we go back a certain time we see a very different state of things. I won't refer to the particular matters of the land, the Church, and the franchise, though I will say that there are no acts of my life with which I have been connected which have given me greater satisfaction than some of those acts in relation to Ireland, and not least the abolition of that dreadful monopoly, the Irish Established Church, and the extension of the franchise, which, together with the protection afforded by the secret vote, has given to the Irish people once and for all the irreversible means of telling us what they want and what they mean. Now we see abuses going on in Ireland; we see the people suffering what they ought not to suffer; we see this bad administrative system; but it is borne in patience. No method of redress is contemplated except the constitutional and Parliamentary method, and the people with an admirable patience and an admirable self-control, relying upon their friends in England, in Scotland, and in Wales, bore and endured in silence and in Christian resignation that which for the moment is appointed for them. And are they unreasonable in that? Are they reckoning "without their hosts," to use the old proverbial expression? In this address you have truly said that the cause is not dependent on any one man, inasmuch as it now forms a recognised portion of the programme of the great Liberal party. Yes; and there I come to another proposition which I should wish to print on your recollection, and that I believe to be absolutely beyond dispute. I am not aware of any great cause, any great plan, any great purpose, which, after it had once been definitely inscribed on the book, so to speak, of the Liberal party, has failed to take effect. I might go on, but there is no time and no need for me to quote to you the causes with which we have had to deal in the course of the last fifty or sixty years, beginning from the time of the Roman Catholic Emancipation; but you know the truth of what I say, and you rely upon not reasoning merely, but upon experience, to explain the wonderful patience and resignation with which the Irish bear what they have now to bear, and the singular fidelity and confidence with which they rely upon the working of Parliamentary principles, and the institutions of the country, in order to attain to that which is still wanting for the satisfaction of their legitimate wishes and needs. I thank you very much. The residue of my life is the property of Ireland, as far as it may be made use of, for the attainment of the great object we have in view. (Cheers.)

The deputation then withdrew.

Accompanied by their host and hostess, and by the officers of the Liberal Federation and the Liberal Association, the distinguished visitors drove to the Great Western Railway Station and travelled by special train to West Bromwich, where they were received by the Hon. P. Stanhope and the Countess Tolstoi. In the waiting room a large deputation presented addresses from several Liberal associations and clubs in the district. The address from the Staffordshire Liberal Council was engraved on sheet steel. In the course of his response Mr. Gladstone said: I cannot help assuring you of the pleasure and satisfaction with which I receive these addresses, and I will confine myself beyond that to the expression of one single idea. I am here in a district the heart, and soul, and intelligence of which I believe to be entirely enlisted—I will not say entirely enlisted, but in a preponderating degree enlisted—on behalf of the just claims of Ireland. (Cheers.) Of course I am aware of the fact—shortlived, I believe, but disastrous while it lives—that the representation of this district is, until I come near the portion of it represented so well and effectually by my hon. friend, Mr. Stanhope—(cheers)—entirely adverse not only to our ideas, not only to the general principles and views of the Liberal party, but to something which I fear is far beyond even those general principles and views—namely, the great international question between the two islands, which make up the United Kingdom. (Hear, hear.) Well, I have shown in Birmingham that, while we have certainly got several million of occupation votes which are, of course, greatly divided in opinion, the balance at the last election, according to every rational and moderate estimate that can be made, was cast, not by the true sense of the population, considered individually as men, but by the plural votes given by the owners of property—(Shame)—who have already, like everybody else, enjoyed their occupation vote, and, having enjoyed their occupation vote by virtue of their possessions in different Parliamentary districts, and often in different counties, are enabled to be represented over and over again at the polls, which is like what sometimes happens at the play. (Laughter.) I recollect very well an amusing play at the Haymarket Theatre, where the representation was of the army of a very small German potentate. You are aware that in those days Germany was broken up in a multitude of fractions, instead of being, as it now is, a great and united people. Some of these fractions were extremely small, and the potentates were counted by the score, if not by the hundred. The army of this potentate consisted of no less than two soldiers. (Laughter.) This potentate had a policy, and he had a military policy, and his policy consisted in making the two soldiers shift rapidly from place to place, so that they appeared in half a score of places with a capitally dressed and got up sentinel always on guard and on duty. (Laughter.) Sometimes we saw them skipping across the stage, but always they reappeared, at the right time, and produced the impression of considerable force. (Laughter.) These property voters are exactly like the soldiers. The ownership voter obtains a chance of multiplying himself by nimbly moving from one election to another, appearing on a multitude of polls. Well, if there has been a spark of argument, a spark of amusement, in that illustration, I am extremely glad of it; but it was no joke in the year 1886. The effect of that has been to falsify the sense of the country represented in the elections in a manner, I grant perfectly legal, perfectly authoritative, not to be disputed for a moment while it is the law of the country; but there is, I believe, the fact that a minority of the people have possessed a majority of the votes, and have possessed also a majority of the seats in Parliament, and through the majority of these seats, partly Tory, partly Dissentient Liberal—I do not like to draw any broad distinction between them, but, on the whole, every Englishman likes to know who and what he has to deal with, and, for my part, I confess I have more satisfaction at the present time in dealing with the Tories than with the Dissentients—but between them the effect of this political representation, but moral misrepresentation—(cheers)—of the people of this island has been that Ireland is groaning under coercion—that Ireland has still to lament the existence of an administrative system thoroughly anti-national, which you would not tolerate for a week if it existed in this country, and that the day of the fulfilment of their hopes is somewhat postponed. (Cheers.) I do trust that you will when the time comes make serious efforts to see if you can't mend that state of things in this district. I feel anxious about you, but as to the country at large I feel no anxiety. I feel a perfect moral confidence and certainty as to what the country at large will say. (Cheers.) I know something of Wales, and in Wales I believe we would make a pretty clean sweep. I know something of Scotland, and in Scotland I am assured on the best authorities that we shall very nearly make a clean sweep of those sections and parties who misrepresent the country and keep alive and foment discord between England and Ireland. That the party of concord will be uppermost I have no doubt, and let it be uppermost in this district as well as in other districts. Don't you be behind your fellow-countrymen in this great, happy, blessed, and glorious work, but contribute your share to the honour and character, the peace, comfort, and strength and permanent solidity of this great Empire. (Loud cheers.)

Mrs. Gladstone thanked the ladies who had made a presentation to her, and said the best wish she could express to them was that they would continue in the good work they had begun until they had achieved victory.

Mr. Gladstone then left the station and entered an open carriage and drove through the Black Country to Mr. Stanhope's, at Wombourne. The drive occupied two hours and a half, the right hon. gentleman being cheered by enthusiastic crowds along the route.

To-morrow Mr. Gladstone will go to Wolverhampton, for the purpose of receiving a number of addresses.

THE HONOURABLE ARTILLERY COMPANY.

Last night the members of the Honourable Artillery Company, to the number of nearly four hundred, met in Special General Court at the Armoury House, Finsbury, to consider certain proposals which had been made to the regiment as to its future condition by the Prince of Wales, Captain-General and Colonel. The Court was presided over by Lord Colville of Culross, formerly commanding officer, who was supported by the Duke of Portland (Lieutenant-Colonel) and most of the officers of the company. Lord Colville referred at length to correspondence which had been in progress for some months between his Royal Highness and the Court of Assistants, by which it appeared that the opinion of the Commander-in-Chief (Lord Wolseley), Mr. Stanhope, and the other chief military advisers of the Crown had been given that the welfare of the company—which has existed in its present form for over 350 years—would be best consulted by the members placing themselves under the Volunteer Act. His Royal Highness gave the company an assurance that its ancient privileges and precedence should be maintained, and believed that under the new arrangement the Honourable Artillery Company would flourish and gain in popularity and influence.—Lord Colville moved a resolution to the effect that the regiment accept the Captain-General's recommendation to go under the Volunteer Act, with his Royal Highness's assurances in regard to its privileges, and to the continued control of its property; and that the members would do all in their power to maintain the regiment in a high state of efficiency. This was seconded by the Duke of Portland, and carried unanimously.

Electrical and Pumilio-Pine Treatment.—Every man and woman suffering from gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, indigestion, paralysis, epilepsy, liver complaints, nervous debility, and any nervous or organic derangement, should send for one of Johnson's Patent Hygio-Electric Belts, which combine the efficacy of a portable voltaic battery with the hygienic properties of Dr. Dunbar's "Medicated Pumilio Pine Felt." This belt is the only scientific bona-fide electric belt offered to the public. It is a marvel of efficacy and cheapness.—Write for pamphlet, post free from W. G. Johnson, Medico-Electric Belt, Truss, and Battery Company (Limited), 55, New Bond-street, London, W.—(Advt.)

The provision market continues steady.

Mr. J. Blundell Maple, M.P., presided last night at the annual dinner, held in aid of the funds of the Peckham and Old Kent-road Pension Society, in the Venetian Chamber of the Holborn Restaurant. One of the chief objects of the society is to give permanent relief to aged tradesmen and their widows, residing in the district of Peckham, by granting monthly pensions. In proposing the toast of the evening, the chairman said he was convinced that no better or more deserving society existed than "The Peckham and Old Kent-road Pension Society." He found that it had been in existence some fifty-four years, and that thirty-eight aged persons were now on its list of pensioners. He hoped they would soon see their way to raising the number of pensioners from thirty-eight to fifty. The secretary then announced donations amounting to £450, including a legacy of £300 from one of the late directors, Mr. Charles Cook.

On behalf of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, the secretary denies that Messrs. John Burns, of London, William Forrest, and T. Mann, of Bolton, are its representatives at the International Trades Union Congress, Mr. William H. Eveleigh having been appointed to act in that capacity by the Local Executive Council as governing body of the society.

A boy, fourteen years of age, named James Ward, son of a miner at Muirkirk, was yesterday, at Ayr, committed for trial on a charge of killing a child, named Jane Muir, aged seven. A younger brother of the accused and Muir quarrelled, and the accused, it is alleged, struck her with his clenched fist on the head, causing concussion of the brain, from which the child died a few days after.

Accident on the District Railway.—Travellers to the West-end of the metropolis by the District Railway were considerably inconvenienced last evening by an accident, it is stated, to the engine attached to a passenger train at Sloane-square. About nine o'clock traffic on the line running westward became blocked, and remained so for about an hour and a half, but the services to the City were not interfered with.

On Wednesday the traffic receipts of the Suez Canal amounted to 290,000f, against 290,000f on the corresponding day of last year.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

LIVERPOOL NOTES.

No sooner had backers of favourites for the Liverpool Cup escaped from the shock of the scratching of Acme than a second surprise awaited them. The intimation that Ashplant had not been seen at exercise before breakfast was correctly attributed to lameness, and at noon the pen was put through his name. The veterinary surgeon called in to examine the horse certified that he had hit the inside of his near fore leg, and added that, under the circumstances, it would be madness to run him. With the withdrawal of the Irish four-year-old, who I learn has been more or less a source of trouble to Jousiffe since he finished second to Satiety in the summer, the market underwent some material changes as far as Fullerton, Bismarck, Polydor, and Candlemas were concerned. Not so, however, in the cases of either Lady Rosebery, Danbydale, or Sorrento, of whom the first-mentioned filly exhibited decisive and startling superiority. The majority of the public were off the scent, but for that matter they had no real encouragement to believe to any extent in Lady Rosebery, as Tommy Tittlemouse was meeting her upon better terms than when he had beaten her only five weeks ago in the Gold Cup at Edinburgh. Whereas Mr. Whipp's old slave was then more than a stone in front of her ladyship, I have no hesitation in saying that she could now simply lose him upon equal terms. This is one of the many illustrations of back form which crop up with such frequency. The weather was an improvement in comparison to what had been experienced on the two previous days, and if the attendance was below an average, it included Lord Sefton, Lord Calthorpe, Lord Howe, Lord Gosford, Lord Lurgan, Sir George Chetwynd, Sir H. de Vaux, General Owen Williams, and Colonel Forester, from Croxteth. In addition, there were present Lord Dudley, Lord Cholmondeley, Lord Arthur Somerset, and Baron C. de Tuyll, Captain Archdale, Messrs. J. B. Leigh, Warren de la Rue, H. Fenwick, and R. C. Vyner. The Wavertree Welter Handicap opened the battle, and the favourites were Lown and Mellifont, of whom the one was always badly placed, and the other would not struggle from the distance. Queen of the Dale, who ran third in this handicap last year to Braw Lass and Fairy King, now played the winning stroke, and she had acquitted herself fairly well in the Stewards' Cup. Watts could make no more of Bangor in the Fazakerly Plate than did Loates on Wednesday, and the victory of King Cole was accepted in the light of a good omen by the admirers of Fullerton. In claiming Bangor it cannot be said that Mr. Shepherd got hold of a bargain, as he is a rogue of the very deepest dye. Glenthorpe was not quite so fit as some of his opponents in the Aintree Hunt Steeplechase, and was unable to maintain his Sandown Park form of last spring, Battle Royal turning the tables upon him. At the same time the latter could only finish third to Cloister and Ireland, as when he began to overhaul them it was too late. The winner, who had the services of William Nightingall, earned two brackets in Ireland during the Spring campaign, a couple of military steeplechases falling to his share at Fairy House, co. Kildare. The Aigburth Plate was an easy affair for Golden Fleece. With the decks thus cleared for the Liverpool Cup, a party of twelve assembled at the post. Fullerton and Bismarck, Candlemas, Danbydale, and Polydor renewed their Cambridgeshire antagonism, and it could not be denied that the first-named pair were the two swells. The field, in fact, was decidedly ragged on the whole, as the majority of the competitors were badly broken in their coats. The colours carried by Bismarck—broad stripes of black and orange—were very striking, and in the preliminary canter he was on the best of terms with his jockey, who experienced not the least difficulty in riding a waiting race. The front rank consisted of Tommy Tittlemouse, Sorrento, Frank, and Candlemas until rather more than a quarter of a mile from home, when Lady Rosebery and Aureoline worked their way to the front. The retirement of Tommy Tittlemouse gave the opportunity for Bismarck to secure the rail berth, and his luck in this respect was very different to that of Fullerton. The latter was badly fixed inside the distance, and in my opinion he must, but for this, have proved himself almost, if not quite, the equal of Bismarck. The shouts for the third in the Cambridgeshire were short lived, as Lady Rosebery shook off his challenge without an effort and won with a big piece in hand. The filly has been leased only from her breeder, Mr. Harrison, and she has to be given up at the expiration of the present season. The Downe Nursery was carried off by Tremolo, who wore blinkers, from the penalised Whitehall; and in conclusion Windfall was successful for the Maiden Plate, Bellatrix being an absentee.

To-morrow Hettie may win the Match, Master Patrick the Bootle Nursery, Apollo the Liverpool St. Leger, Shillelagh or Theosophist the Great Lancashire Handicap, Waterfall the Sefton Nursery, Pillarist the Walton Welter Handicap, Rankshorough the Valentine Hunt Steeplechase, and Savoyard the Hapsburg Steeplechase. Mr. T. G. Gordon's Black Witch, 5 yrs, 7st 12lb .. (Warne) 0
(Winner trained by Osborne.)

Betting—100 to 30 each agst Mellifont and Lown, 100 to 12 each agst Queen of the Dale and Castagnette, 10 to 1 agst Ossidine, 100 to 8 each agst Hazlewood, Eva Jeanie, and Bacillus, and 20 to 1 each agst Pet Fox and Black Witch.

Black Witch settled down in front and made strong running from Pet Fox, Castagnette, and Rosamene, with Queen of the Dale and Mellifont next, and Lown last, until a quarter of a mile from home, when Castagnette and Pet Fox were beaten, and Mellifont and Queen of the Dale drew up to the leader, with Hazlewood also improving his position. At the distance Queen of the Dale took up the running, and, shaking off the challenge of Bacillus, who came with a wet sail on, Lord Feversham's mare won by half a length, a neck between second and third. Lown was fourth, Mellifont fifth, Rosamene sixth, Castagnette seventh, and Pet Fox last.

The FAZAKERLY PLATE of 105 sovs, for two-yr-olds; colts, 8st 12lb, fillies and geldings, 8st 9lb; with penalties and allowances; entrance 3 guineas. 5 furlongs.

Lord Dudley's King Cole, by Childeric—Anville, 8st 12lb (£50) (G. Barrett) 1
Mr. Shepherd's br f by Peter—Castellamare, 8st 5lb (£50) (Rickaby) 2

Mr. Jameson's Lord of the Isles, 8st 5lb (£50) .. (Fagan) 0
(Winner trained by Marsh.)

Betting—5 to 4 on Bangor, 7 to 4 agst King Cole, and 10 to 1 each agst Lord of the Isles and Castellamare colt (offered).

Lord of the Isles made play, followed by Bangor and King Cole, to the bend, where the favourite ran out, and King Cole, taking the lead at the distance, won by three-quarters of a length; three lengths between second and third. The winner was bought in for 300 guineas.

The EIGHTH AINTREE HUNT STEEPLECHASE of 300 sovs, for qualified hunters, second received 50 sovs, and third 25 sovs from the plate; weight for age; mares and geldings allowed 5lb; entrance 3 guineas. About 2½ miles.

Captain J. A. Orr-Ewing's Cloister, by Ascetic—Grace II., 4 yrs, 10st 5lb .. (W. Nightingall) 1

Mr. O. H. Jones' Merryman, 5 yrs, 11st 2lb (Captain L. H. Jones) 0
Mr. O. H. Jones' Glenthorpe, 4 yrs, 10st 5lb (car 10st 8lb) (Mr. W. H. Moore) 0
Mr. J. Percival's Rankshorough, 4 yrs, 10st 5lb (W. E. Stephens) 0
Mr. A. M. Singer's Banshee, 5 yrs, 11st 5lb (car 11st 7lb) (Mr. G. S. Davies) 0
Baron C. de Tuyll's Beckhampton, aged, 11st 7lb (Captain E. R. Owen) 0
Mr. O. H. Jones declared to win with Glenthorpe.
(Winner trained privately.)

Betting—4 to 1 each agst Glenthorpe and Ireland, 9 to 2 agst Battle Royal, 6 to 1 agst High Art, 7 to 1 agst Cloister, 100 to 11 agst Banshee, 10 to 1 agst M.P., 100 to 9 agst Beckhampton, and 100 to 8 agst Rankshorough.

Shortly after starting Cloister took the lead, and was followed by Banshee, M.P., and Battle Royal to the second fence, where Banshee drew to the front, and was followed over the water by Rankshorough, Battle Royal, and High Art, with Ireland, Greek Girl, and Glenthorpe next, and Beckhampton last. Into the country, where Cloister resumed the lead, and holding it to the end won easily by two lengths, three lengths separating the second and third. M.P. was fourth, Banshee fifth, Rankshorough sixth, High Art seventh, Glenthorpe next, and Greek Girl last. Beckhampton was pulled up, and Merryman fell about a mile from home.

The AIGBURTH PLATE of 105 sovs; weight for age, with selling and other allowances; entrance 3 guineas. Canal Point in (about 6 furlongs).

Mr. W. Blake's Golden Fleece, by Bend Or—Queensland, 2 yrs, 6st 12lb (£50) .. (G. Chaloner) 1
Mr. Melville's Eleusis, 3 yrs, 8st 7lb (£50) .. (Fagan) 2
Mr. Renfrew's Monkshood, 4 yrs, 9st 4lb (£50) .. (Robinson) 3
Mr. J. Davis's Leeds, aged, 9st (£50) .. (J. Osborne) 0
Mr. Nesbitt's Jack-a-Dandy, 3 yrs, 8st 9lb (£50) .. (Rickaby) 0
(Winner trained by R. Sherwood.)

Betting—Evens on Golden Fleece, 5 to 1 each agst Monkshood and Eleusis, and 11 to 1 agst Leeds.

Golden Fleece made all the running, and won in a canter by a length; three lengths between second and third. Jack-a-Dandy, who finished last, was sold for fifty-three guineas to Mr. J. H. Shepherd, and the winner was bought in for 235 guineas.

The LIVERPOOL AUTUMN CUP of 1,000 sovs (a handicap), by subscription of 25 sovs each, 15 ft, and 5 guineas only if declared; second received 50 sovs from the plate; winners extra. Cup Course (1 mile and 3 furlongs). 50 subs, 27 of whom declared.

Mr. W. Winn's Lady Rosebery, by Rosebery—The Empress Maud, 3 yrs, 8st 12lb (allowed 5lb) .. (W. Wood) 1

Mr. Fairie's Sorrento, 4 yrs, 8st 12lb (allowed 5lb) (Fallon) 0
Lord Cholmondeley's Polydor, 3 yrs, 6st 2lb (car 6st 5lb) (Wall) 0
Mr. Naylor's Frank, 3 yrs, 8st 13lb (car 8st 12lb) (R. Chaloner) 0
Duke of Beaufort's Latania, 3 yrs, 5st 10lb .. (Hibberd) 0
(Winner trained by Ireland.)

Betting—5 to 2 agst Fullerton, 100 to 30 agst Bismarck, 7 to 1 agst Polydor, 12 to 1 agst Candlemas, 100 to 8 agst Lady Rosebery, 100 to 7 each agst Danbydale and Aureoline, 100 to 6 each agst Sorrento and Tommy Tittlemouse, and 50 to 1 each agst Frank, Latania, and Stourhead. Places: 11 to 8 on Bismarck, evens on Fullerton, 7 to 4 agst Polydor, 2 to 1 agst Candlemas, 9 to 4 agst Lady Rosebery, 5 to 2 agst Tommy Tittlemouse, 11 to 4 agst Sorrento, 100 to 30 each agst Danbydale and Aureoline, 100 to 8 each agst Stourhead and Frank, and 100 to 8 agst Latania.

The parade and canter were got through without any delay, and the lot, after reaching the post, were quickly in line. They gave very little trouble before Lord Marcus Beresford was able to despatch them to a good start. Tommy Tittlemouse was quickest away, closely followed by Fullerton, Sorrento, and Candlemas, with Aureoline, Stourhead, Bismarck, and Frank next, in front of Lady Rosebery, with Latania last. After running a furlong Tommy Tittlemouse took the lead, and was followed by Sorrento, Candlemas, and Frank, with Lady Rosebery, Fullerton, and Aureoline next, these being followed by Bismarck, Stourhead, and Polydor, whilst the rear was brought up by Latania. So they ran to the mile post, where Tommy Tittlemouse drew out with a clear lead, and went on three or four lengths in front of Sorrento and Frank, with Candlemas just behind this pair, and clear of Lady Rosebery, Aureoline, and Fullerton, Latania now being beaten off. At the Canal turn Frank and Sorrento reduced the lead of Tommy Tittlemouse, Candlemas and Aureoline now being fourth and fifth, with Bismarck, Fullerton, and Lady Rosebery leading the remainder. No further change occurred until a quarter of a mile from home, when Lady Rosebery drew up to the leaders. She quickly assumed the command, and, with Tommy Tittlemouse and Sorrento well beaten, Bismarck ran into second place, but he could not get on terms with Lady Rosebery, who had the race in hand from the distance, and won in a canter by two lengths; a length and a half between second and third. Frank was fourth, Fullerton fifth, Danbydale sixth, Sorrento seventh, Polydor eighth, Tommy Tittlemouse ninth, Candlemas tenth, and Latania last. Time, by Benson's chronograph, 2min 25 4-5sec.

The DOWNE NURSERY HANDICAP of 150 sovs, by subscription of 3 guineas each, and 5 guineas extra for starters, for two-yr-olds; winners extra. 5 furlongs. 26 subs.

Mr. F. Sasson's Tremolo, by Balfe—Mentone, 7st 4lb (J. Woodburn) 1
Mr. J. B. Leigh's Whitehall, 8st 3lb (inc 7lb ex) (car 8st 4lb) (Robinson) 2
Mr. D. Baird's Roslin, 5st 12lb (allowed 5lb) .. (Saddon) 3
Mr. J. R. Graham's The Rock, 6st 7lb .. (Wall) 0
Mr. R. Gladstone's Jointure, 6st 3lb .. (Blake) 0
(Winner trained by Leader.)

Betting—7 to 4 agst Whitehall, 11 to 4 agst Roslin, 100 to 30 agst Tremolo, and 10 to 1 each agst The Rock and Jointure.

Tremolo led throughout, and won by a length and a half; a bad third. Jointure was last.

The MAIDEN PLATE of 105 sovs; weight for age; winners extra; entrance 3 guineas. 1 mile.

Lord Calthorpe's Windfall, by Petrarch—Wingrave Lass, 2 yrs, 6st 11lb .. (G. Chaloner) 1
Mr. J. Smith Barry's Mirabeau, 2 yrs, 6st 10lb .. (Blake) 2
Mr. T. Wadlow's Monte Video, 2 yrs, 6st 10lb .. (P. Jones) 3
Mrs. J. Ridley's St. Alkelda, 3 yrs, 8st .. (W. Platt) 0
(Winner trained by Jewitt.)

Betting—9 to 4 on Windfall, 5 to 1 agst Mirabeau, and 8 to 1 each agst St. Alkelda and Monte Video (offered).

Mirabeau led to the distance, where Windfall drew out, and won by half a length; a bad third.

BILLIARDS.

Cook v. Taylor.—Yesterday's play in the spot-barred match of 10,000 up between these professionals at the Aquarium proved very interesting, and both afternoon and evening the attendance was fairly good. Overnight the scores were: Cook, 5,001; Taylor, 4,570, the latter, notwithstanding his start of a thousand, thus being a long way behind. He made a better fight of it yesterday, however, as he scored 1,217 to Cook's 1,474. The ex-champion was in fine form, and amongst other breaks made 93, 134, 68, 89, 118, 78, 93, 111, 64, 81, and 55. Taylor's best were 49, 67, 47, 66, 78, 70, 49, 49, 76, 68, 57, 52, 46, and 53. At the end of the day's proceedings the scores stood: Cook, 6,475; Taylor, 5,787.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

QUEEN'S BENCH DIVISION, Nov. 8.

(Before Mr. Justice Mathew.)

GUNTER v. RECEIVER OF THE METROPOLITAN POLICE DISTRICT.

Colonel Gunter, M.P., sought to recover from the Receiver of the Metropolitan Police District the sum of £683 3s, as compensation, under the Riot (Damages) Act, 1886, for injury done to the plaintiff's property at Lillie Bridge on Sept. 19, 1887, in what are known as "the Lillie Bridge riots" of that date.

Mr Asquith and Mr. Lewis Coward were counsel for the plaintiff, while the Solicitor-General (Sir Edward Clarke, Q.C.) and Mr. Danckwerts were for the defence.

Mr. Asquith, in opening the case for the plaintiff, said that Mr. R. Lewis took the ground from Colonel Gunter's manager, Mr. Gilbert, for a race between Hutchens and Gent, professional runners, on Sept. 19 last year. Mr. Lewis was to have a sufficient number of constables to preserve order, and applied for ten at the Hammersmith Police-station, but was told by the superintendent that at least twenty would be required for the purpose. Eventually he obtained a force of twenty-seven police—an inspector, two sergeants, twenty ordinary constables, and four detectives. For this assistance he paid £11 4s, including £1 9s for refreshments for the police. The stake at the race was £100 a side. The admission charges were 2s and 1s. The race was to commence about half-past five o'clock, and about five the runners arrived on the scene, where there was a large attendance. They went into the dressing room, where no one else was to be admitted but two immediate attendants. Some twenty or thirty roughs broke into the place, some of them armed with sticks, others with ginger-beer bottles, and similarly extemporised weapons, threatening to kill the two runners if they went on with the race. The result was that the competitors were hustled off by the back door of the dressing-room, removed from the ground, and no more seen. He (the learned counsel) could conclusively prove that neither Mr. Lewis nor Mr. Gilbert had any knowledge of, or were in any way accessory to this most illegitimate proceeding. The result was that a crowd of people collected; those who paid the 2s and those who paid the 1s got mixed, and, on its becoming known that the competitors had been spirited away a general row began. Unfortunately one of the policemen at that moment opened a side gate, and the people outside, who had not paid at all, rushed in. Mr. Lewis and Mr. Gilbert escaped with difficulty, the latter by climbing over the roof of a building, and the former taking the precaution to bring the money with him. The rioters set fire to the building and refreshment bars. The police did their best under very unfavourable circumstances to encounter and put down the mob, but they were completely overpowered. It was to recover compensation for the damage so sustained by the plaintiff that this action was brought.

Some evidence was given on behalf of the plaintiff, and the further hearing was adjourned until Monday.

With reference to the affairs of E. W. Alleyne, whose examination in bankruptcy was concluded yesterday, we are asked to state that he was married in 1874, when the settlement referred to in the report was made.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

GUILDHALL.—Allegations against a Schoolmaster.—Two little boys named Henry and James Smith were charged at the Guildhall Police-court with wandering without any visible means of subsistence.—Police-constable Jacobs deposed to finding the boys walking about Aldersgate-street, and Mr. Wills, the Industrial Schools officer, stated that he had made inquiries about the case. The boys were charged at this court in September last with a similar offence, and then discharged upon their father, who was a dock labourer, promising to see that they attended school regularly.—The father said the children were frightened to go to school because the schoolmaster chastised them so. The eldest boy was flogged one day so severely that he (the father) took him to the Old-street Police-station and showed the inspector the state he was in. The inspector advised him to go to see the schoolmaster. He did so, and the teacher gave him [illegible] not to summons him.—The Alderman (addressing Mr. Wills): Have you heard anything about this?—Mr. Wills: I have heard something about it, but have made no inquiries yet. If it is true what the father says it is a very serious matter for the master.—Mr. Alderman Cowan: Inquiries must be made. I shall adjourn the case, and the schoolmaster must attend.

BOW-STREET.—Business of the Court.—Sir James Ingham, the chief magistrate, announced that in future the remanded cases, which have usually been taken at twelve o'clock, would be taken at half-past eleven.

WANDSWORTH.—Refusing to Bury a Child.—Mr. W. W. Young, solicitor to the Wandsworth District Board, attended before the magistrate and mentioned that the body of a child on whom an inquest was held by Mr. Braxton Hicks, the coroner, a day or two ago, was lying in the mortuary, the Guardians having refused to bury it. He pointed out that, under the Sanitary Act, the sanitary authority was empowered to provide a proper place for any dead body at the cost of the ratepayers, and to secure its interment on a magistrate's order.—Mr. Curtis Bennett: Does not the coroner make an order for the burial of the child?—Mr. Young: Yes, sir, but the order is not directed to any one. The parents are too poor to have the burial conducted themselves.—Mr. Curtis Bennett: I understand the mother is in a lunatic asylum, and the father is in prison for assaulting one of his children.—Mr. Young argued that the magistrate had power to direct, under the circumstances, the burial of the child; but Mr. Curtis Bennett thought not, and expressed a strong opinion that it was a duty which should be discharged by the relieving officer.—Mr. Young said the Guardians denied that it was any part of their duty.—Mr. Curtis Bennett referred to the wreck of the Princess Alice, and said the bodies washed ashore were interred by the authorities. The only question raised on that lamentable occasion was whether the cost should be defrayed by the county. He would caution the local authorities that they would render themselves liable to an action if they declined to discharge their proper functions. He inquired who the Guardians said were the proper people to bury the child.—Mr. Young replied that the Guardians thought the responsibility rested with the district board, but this was not the case. He contended that the magistrate had power to order the body to be removed on the certificate of a qualified practitioner, and direct the same to be buried within a certain time.—Mr. Curtis Bennett held that he had no such power, but said he could make an order if it was proved that the body was injurious to health. He was astonished at the conduct of the authorities in raising such an objection. They should discharge their officer and appoint one who would do his duty.—Mr. Young observed that the ratepayers could elect Guardians who were capable of discharging their duties properly.—Mr. Curtis Bennett pointed out that the common law of England was for a body to be buried, and if the parents could not afford to do it, it was the duty of the ratepayers. The Public Health Act provided that local boards should undertake to provide proper and decent interment of any body admitted into the mortuary. Mr. Young said the Public Health Act did not apply to the metropolis, but Mr. Curtis Bennett mentioned that he only alluded to it to show the spirit which should guide other authorities. He regretted that he was unable to interfere in the matter, and Mr. Young undertook to convey the magistrate's astonishment to the Guardians, who might be persuaded to ascertain what their responsibilities were in the matter.

PERSONS who SUFFER from a chronic inflammatory condition of the mucous membrane, periodically assuming an acute aspect in the form of COUGH, Catarrh, Bronchitis, and Asthma, will find POWELL'S BALSAM of ANISEED a friend indeed.—Sold by Chemists throughout the world, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per bottle. See Trade Mark, "Lion, Net, and Mouse." Established 70 years.

CAUTION.—Only articles possessing some special and acknowledged excellence are worth imitating; and the unprecedented success of POWELL'S BALSAM of ANISEED has induced dishonest traders to defraud the public with utterly worthless imitations. In order, therefore, to protect the public against such fraudulent imitations, the well-known Trade Mark—"Lion, Net, and Mouse"—is conspicuously printed on the wrapper of every bottle of Powell's Balsam of Aniseed, and any imitation of the same is forgery and a breach of the law relating to trade marks.

POWELL'S BALSAM of ANISEED.—The high character of this old-established remedy for Pulmonary and Bronchial Disorders is repeatedly confirmed by the gratifying letters received from those who have experienced its great worth. Sold by Chemists everywhere.

SWEETING'S TOOTHACHE ELIXIR. A Safe and Infallible Cure for Toothache, Tic-Doloreux, Neuralgic Pains in the Head, Face, &c. This excellent preparation, instead of aiming at giving temporary relief, attacks the root of the disorder, viz., the stomach, a disordered state of which is almost invariably the cause of toothache, tic-doloreux, neuralgia, and other painful affections of the teeth and gums. Possessing highly tonic and carminative properties, the latter giving a healthy warmth, and the former tone and vigour to the nervous system, it gives almost instantaneous relief, and rarely, if ever, fails in producing a certain and permanent cure.

Sold in bottles, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each, by all Medicine Vendors throughout the United Kingdom. Wholesale Agents, Barclay and Sons (Limited), London.

LONDON, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 9.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Darling, Solicitor-General for Scotland, took the oath and his seat as member for Edinburgh and St. Andrews Universities, in succession to the late Lord-Advocate, Mr. Macdonald, now Lord Justice Clerk. The Marquis of Hartington informed Lord Charles Beresford that the Committee on Army and Navy Administration would reassemble next week, but would probably not be able to make any report this year. Mr. Matthews stated, in answer to a question, that when Sir Charles Warren wrote his recent article in "Murray's Magazine," respecting the Trafalgar-square riots, he was not aware of the existence of a Home Office rule by which officers attached to the department were precluded from publishing observations relating to its administration without the special permission of the Home Secretary. Sir Charles had been requested to comply with that rule for the future. In Committee of Supply progress was again made with the consideration of the Civil Service Estimates.

Mr. Gladstone yesterday received a deputation from the Irish residents in Birmingham, who presented him with an address eulogising his labours in the cause of Home Rule. In his reply he said the essential condition of granting Home Rule to Ireland was that it should be asked for, as it now was, by the representatives of that country in the form provided for by the Constitution. He added that the residue of his life was the property of Ireland for the attainment of the object they had in view. The right hon. gentleman afterwards travelled to West Bromwich, where many more addresses were presented to him. In acknowledging them he urged upon the voters in that district to return Members of Parliament who would support Home Rule, for which he confidently predicted victory at the next general election. Mr. Gladstone drove in an open carriage from West Bromwich to Wombourne Hall, the seat of Mr. Philip Stanhope.

Evidence was given before the Parnell Commission yesterday respecting the Lough Mask and Letterfrack murders and other agrarian crimes in the West of Ireland. Some of the witnesses spoke only the Celtic language, and required to have their statements interpreted.

Mr. Alderman Whitehead, the Lord Mayor Elect, was formally inducted into office yesterday. The programme of to-day's civic procession will be found in another column.

Last night a meeting of the members of the Honourable Artillery Company was held at the Armoury to consider a suggestion made by the Prince of Wales, Captain-General, that they should place themselves under the Volunteer Act. A resolution adopting his Royal Highness's recommendation was carried unanimously.

In the Queen's Bench Division yesterday Colonel Gunter, M.P., sought to recover from the Receiver of the Metropolitan Police District the sum of £883 3s as compensation for injury done to his property during the Lillie Bridge riots in September last year. The case for the plaintiff having been opened, the further hearing was adjourned.

At the Wandsworth Police-court, yesterday, the solicitor to the District Board mentioned that the body of a child on whom a coroner's inquest had been held was lying in the mortuary, the Poor Law Guardians having refused to bury it on the ground that that did not form part of their legal duty. He asked the magistrate to make an order on the guardians for the child's interment. Mr. Curtis Bennett, however, said he had no power to make the order, though he expressed his astonishment that the local authorities should have raised such an objection.

Depression prevailed yesterday morning on the Stock Exchange, but prices closed better, except American railways, which were prejudiced by New York sales. Some of the home railways improved, while Canadian and Mexican lines left off dull. Several of the international foreign bonds were better, and Argentine issues rallied. Copper shares were steady, and diamond mines weak. Consols declined ⅛ to 3-16 per cent.

ABOUT forty years ago the world went crazy in favour of youth. The college don who said, "Nobody is infallible—not even the youngest man in this room," satirised in vain the audacity of philosophers in their teens. In politics Europe seemed as if it had just dropped into a fountain of young life. We heard of nothing but "Young England," with Mr. DISRAELI, Lord JOHN MANNERS, and Mr. GEORGE SMYTHE at its head; of "Young Ireland" led by Mr. GAVAN DUFFY and THOMAS DAVIS; of "Young Italy," encouraged by MAZZINI; of "Young Germany," ardent enough, but with spectacles on its nose; and of "Young France," which had just made the Revolution of 1848. METTERNICH, then tottering to his fall, fired a final shot as he said, "Young Germany! Young France! What! are we to be ruled by Governments of bibs and tuckers?" That emotional period of politics passed away. The Young Englanders became middle-aged Tories of an antiquated type; the Young Irelanders gave up rebellions, and settled down as wire-pullers in New York, journalists in Australia, or tenant-righters at home. Young Italy beat its bleeding breast in vain against the Austrian cage. The late Emperor WILLIAM shot down Young Germany at Baden. Young France disappeared in the Coup d'État. Then Europe reverted to its belief not only in old institutions but in old men. RADETZKY at eighty beat the young Italian patriots with ease. THIERS, beyond middle age, guided LOUIS NAPOLEON as President. In England the whole people hung upon the aged lips of the Duke of WELLINGTON. Since that time no fresh chance for the ardent or the young has arisen. New men come forward and endeavour to push on to the front places. They have fervour, youth.

activity, novelty, on their side, yet something almost invisible seems to draw them back. Not only have we nothing like PITT, Premier at twenty-five, but few persons enter the English Cabinet before fifty, and when we first hear of a rising young man the chances are that he is about forty-five—the age when foolish novelists consider him too old for love, adventure, or romance. In France the career is free, yet all the leaders are men well matured in years. M. JULES FERRY, M. DE FREYCINET, and M. FLOQUET are none of them young. In the New World there is the same tendency. Mr. BLAINE, who will guide the new Cabinet, is a veteran intriguer, and in the whole field of United States politics there is not a single distinguished man under forty. Even during the Civil War, when opportunities of distinction abounded, all the greatest deeds were done not by young men but by middle-aged officers, who twenty or thirty years before had been West Point cadets.

There is a curious contrast in this result to the condition of Europe at the time of the French Revolution and for some years after it. Then the world lay at the feet of young men. NAPOLEON and all his Marshals had attained fame at the age when an English officer is delighted to get his company. The great Austrian commander, the Archduke CHARLES, BONAPARTE'S worthiest antagonist, was a young man. The Duke of WELLINGTON was only forty when he won some of his greatest battles in the Peninsula. ALEXANDER I. of Russia was thirty when he met NAPOLEON at Tilsit, and not thirty-eight when he was the founder of the Holy Alliance, which practically dominated Europe for forty years. The world, according to sanguine men and ardent reformers, is bound to advance, and in the beginning of this century the belief was loudly expressed by Paris, London, and American enthusiasts that before half a century—or even sooner—the wisdom of our forefathers would be a by-word, the youth of all nations would lead the world, and old age would have to retire before the impetuous rush of fresh minds with new ideas. This burning belief in progress, young men, and novelties of all kinds in Church and State pervaded the prose of a thousand French and English essayists, and rings out for us still in the poetry of SHELLEY, BYRON, and MOORE. But what has happened? The world is nearly a century older than it was when the French Revolution broke out, but it still listens to old counsellors, and young men have to spend weary years and do tedious work before they get a chance of being listened to at all. Where are the young generals? Where are the young poets? Where are the young statesmen? When England wants a great speech, filling a vast hall with eighteen thousand silent and impassed listeners, she turns to an old gentleman just about to enter his eightieth year. Her greatest poet, Lord TENNYSON, is nearly as old, and her next, ROBERT BROWNING, is very long past middle age. Historians like Bishop STUBBS, Mr. FREEMAN, and Mr. FROUDE are fast becoming veterans. It is doubtful whether there is a single great or even second-class novelist amongst us who has not passed his fiftieth year. The failure of the French Revolution to lift the world out of its old grooves and to make all things young again is, however, most remarkably shown in the reverence which the nations still show for old dynasties. The House of Hanover is more firmly seated on the throne of England than in 1789. The ROMANOFFS rule Russia, and it is under the HOHENZOLLERNS that Germany, once revolutionary, has united. The HAPSBURGS have increased their personal strength, and though they have lost Italy they have gained dominions further East. The Italians enjoy their liberties under one of the oldest Royal families in Europe—the House of Savoy. In Portugal the BRAGANZAS, in Spain the BOURBONS still reign. So that Europe on the anniversary of the Revolution still obeys Kings and trusts in Princes, while the liveliest movement in France itself is anti-democratic, anti-Republican, and a reversion to the past. New ideas, young men, fresh faces are not apparently in fashion. Count MOLTKE was seventy when he conquered France. Prince BISMARCK, the mainstay of European peace, is past that age, and everybody feels that Germany has lost because her venerable Emperor has been replaced by an impetuous Sovereign, for whom the Pope has no more cutting term than "the young man."

It is rather hard on the rising youth of the world that they have fallen upon a time when nobody will be listened to unless his hair is grey. When two or three young men do flounder to the front they usually turn out CONYBEARES or CUNNINGHAME GRAHAMS, who are suppressed in the House by laughter or sink back out of it, unpitied, upon plank-beds. Even in America or France the democracy are bent upon respecting the past. M. CARNOT was chosen President mainly because his grandfather was a great man. The new ruler of the United States is the grandson of a former President. Much of the personal influence that attaches to Lord SALISBURY is due to the fact that he belongs to a great family that has given many Ministers to England. Mr. PARNELL owes not a little of his ascendency to his heritage from men who have been rulers of Ireland and English politicians for three or four generations. His ablest lieutenant, Mr. JOHN DILLON, is the son of one of the purest of the patriots of '48. Lord SPENCER and Lord GRANVILLE, Sir WILLIAM HARCOURT and the Marquis of RIPON, the Duke of ARGYLL and the Marquis of HARTINGTON belong to families that have supplied statesmen in many reigns. The advice, then, to a public man in England must be—first, if possible, belong to an old and distinguished family. If that is impossible, wait until you get old; then the country will hang upon your lips and listen to your counsels. Possess your soul in patience, live long enough, and your hour of influence must come, if not at sixty or seventy, then at eighty without doubt. The English people believe fervently in old age. They renounce the proverb "Those whom the gods love die young"; they are of opinion that the gods specially favour the "good grey head." For some years before his death the Duke of WELLINGTON was supreme in English hearts; so was Lord PALMERSTON. They were "grand old men," and everybody deferred to them. Mr. GLADSTONE has now attained to the post of national veteran. The popular feeling on the subject is beautiful, and reflects honour on the hearts of the English people; they refuse to forget the past, and they remember only the good work of their public servants. Yet the worship of old age has sometimes its awkward side. For at least ten years the Duke of WELLINGTON delayed needful improvements in the British Army; for about the same period Lord PALMERSTON stifled reform. And, if one day the realm is split up into two, three, or four sections of jarring nationalities, it will be because reverence and gratitude led the multitude to accept any proposal, however wild or sentimental, made by that remarkable man who excels in his old age the oratorical achievements of the strongest speakers of the past.

THE Collective Wisdom of the Nation has not often either the time or the inclination to devote itself to the consideration of such a topic as literature; but on Wednesday the House of Commons, being apparently in an expansive and desultory mood, indulged in a long and, on the whole, somewhat interesting talk about books. It must be admitted that the volumes which came under discussion were scarcely of the nature with which the public are familiar at circulating libraries and on railway bookstalls. The publications of the Record Office were the first to come under review; and, on the vote for completing the estimate for the national archives department, Mr. ELLIS took occasion to express his regret that those calendars of State papers which of late years have rendered such signal service to our historians and our antiquaries were not issued at a cheaper rate than at present. He believed that if the price were reduced it would lead to a larger and more remunerative sale of the portly tomes compiled by the patient and erudite ladies and gentlemen who are commissioned by the Master of the Rolls to boil down into terse epitomes the enormous mass of official documents and private correspondence stored in the huge fire-proof citadel in Fetter-lane. Mr. ELLIS also found fault with the rules which prohibit searchers in the records from using ink in the transcription of ancient manuscripts, seeing that it entailed on them the additional labour of recopying in ink at home that which they had taken down at the Record Office in pencil. It may be pointed out that such a regulation is not by any means confined to the Record Office. It is enforced in the Print Room of the British Museum, and it must be considered as an act of liberality, almost amounting to imprudence, that the use of ink should be allowed to those who make extracts from printed books in the Museum Reading Room. In the case of ancient documents, how irreparable would be the mischief done if, from an overcharged pen, there fell a huge blot right in the middle of an autograph letter from BACON to CECIL, or if it were found that a signature of MARY, Queen of Scots, had been half eclipsed by an inky smear! Mr. ELLIS was also anxious that more attention should be bestowed on the public records relating to Wales, and that a Welsh scholar or scholars should be employed to calendar the vast collection of documents relating to the Principality. Then Mr. ELTON desired to know whether the Orkney and Shetland and Icelandic publications were to be continued, and especially when the public were to be favoured with a printed epitome of the "Chronicles of Robert the Bruce," which had been described by its editor as a work of fiction of more philological than historical value.

Other honourable Members were irate because Irish records in the Irish language had not had sufficient attention paid them by the officials of the Record Office; and Mr. HUNTER showed how deeply he was imbued by the spirit of inquiry when he sought for information as to any documents in Sweden and Denmark bearing on English and Scottish history. As for the archives of Simancas and those in the Convent of the Frari at Venice, they have long since been laid under contribution by the diggers and delvers among foreign State papers; and it is only a matter for surprise that some honourable gentleman did not impetuously demand why a volume of documents translated from the Manx language had not been published, and why the long-promised "Grand Coustumier de Normandie" had not yet been unearthed somewhere in the Channel Islands. The official answers to all these questions and objections were soothingly bland. Mr. JACKSON said that the point of cheapening the price of the calendars of State papers would be considered. He might have added that an industrious frequenter of the second-hand bookstalls finds little difficulty in picking up the publications in question for very moderate sums. Those relating to historical manuscripts existing in the muniment-rooms and charter-chests of historic English mansions keep up their price, and there are always lawyers willing to bid for the Year-Books of the law courts of the late PLANTAGENET Kings; otherwise the calendars of State papers, both domestic and foreign, can usually be purchased for about half the price at which they were issued. It may be added that these publications, although of great value to professed scholars, would not, at however moderate a price they were vended, be much appreciated by the reading public at large, who would be as little edified as amused by such entries as "686. CRANMER to the Convent of Newsham. Recommends DONKESTER as Abbot. Styles him his friend of old acquaintance. Lamehith, 18th of May, 26 Henry the Eight"; or "42. Petition of JOAN, wife of LEONARD RANDALL, of Plymouth, to the Admiralty Commissioners for the release of her husband by exchange. He was lately master of the Orient. March 25th, 1659." The calendars of State papers are made up of thousands upon thousands of what may be called "clippings," hints, notes, and brief indications of almost every conceivable kind of which the scholar and the antiquary know full well how to make use; but, to the general, these bulky tomes can be little more than caviare, or, at the most, not much more entertaining than an old Post-office Directory or Moore's Almanack for the year 1820. We fail, on the whole, to see what benefit would accrue to any one from selling the calendars of State papers at a low price. To render them to any extent popular reading, it would be necessary still further to boil down their contents. As it is, men of letters interested in the history of a particular epoch can, at no great outlay, procure the calendars they want; but very few professional writers would care to cumber their shelves with a complete set of the publications of the Record Office, since they know that the collection in its entirety will be garnered in the British Museum, and will be accessible to all frequenters of the Reading Room. The discussion on the public records did not end without a few hard words from discontented legislators. Mr. CONYBEARE asked for a reduction of fifty per cent. in the number of years, at present fixed at a hundred, within which researches and inspection of documents are not allowed; while Mr. MOLLOY went so far as to declare that the whole system of the Record Office was one of idiotic secrecy. There seemed to be a wish in some quarters to fall foul of the Home Secretary, who is officially associated with the Master of the Rolls in giving sanction for searching State papers. Mr. MATTHEWS, however, cautiously evaded acrimonious controversy by quietly walking out of the House; and indignant Members were fain to be content with the assurance of the Secretary to the Treasury that the Government would pay due attention to the complaints which had been made.

After the vote for the Record Office was agreed to, the House continued to display an appetite for literature, and plunged at once into an animated conversation concerning those essentially British institutions blue books. We call them essentially British, since, although in foreign countries white, green, yellow, and red books are occasionally put forth, containing reports of committees, and selections from diplomatic correspondence, England is the only country in Europe which, for very nearly a century, has been almost incessantly bombarding its legislators with blue books, to the questionable moral or political advantage of the Members of either House of Parliament, but to the great joy and the not inconsiderable profit of the dealers in waste paper. In moving an amendment to the vote for the Stationery Department, Mr. LABOUCHERE denounced as enormous the charge of sixty-five thousand pounds for printing, paper, and binding, and maintained that the department printed a large number of comparatively useless blue books. He suggested that some twenty-five thousand a year might be saved to the public if the Government sent round every morning to Members a list of the papers at their disposal, and gentlemen might then apply only for the official publications which they really required. The proposal of the senior Member for Northampton seems to be an ingenious adaptation of the system at present followed in residential mansions to which restaurants are attached. The bill of fare is sent round in the morning, and the occupants, if they intend to lunch or dine at home, select such dishes as they would like to have served. On the other hand, the Stationery Department, as a huge caterer for legislative hunger, disdains to give a choice of the viands in its menu, and overwhelms the unhappy M.P.'s with an avalanche of entrées, removes, and "grosses pièces;" the entire banquet, from the egg to the apple, is expected to be consumed. There is no getting over the fact that of the making of blue books there is no end, and that they are hurled with reckless prodigality at the heads of honourable Members. Mr. BARTLEY calculated that every M.P. received about two hundredweight of Parliamentary blue books and papers every year; and that, if he waded through the whole of this printed matter, it would take him two hundred and fifty days to read it from beginning to end. Again, "butter upon bacon" would appear to be a standing motto with the Stationery Department; for, according to Mr. BARTLEY, the Speech from the Throne last Session was sent to every Member about twenty times. Mr. ADDISON had the hardihood to suggest that Members of Parliament who wanted blue books should pay for them; but this unkind proposal was met by deprecatory cries of "Oh!" and it is indeed difficult to realise the idea of any honourable Member in his sober senses buying a blue book, unless, perhaps, he had been examined as a witness before a Commission or a Committee, and was anxious to see himself in print. The blue book discussion continued with tolerable briskness until it was snuffed out by the application of the half-past five o'clock rule; and our legislators, it is to be feared, will know no surcease of bombardment with blue books. What is an M.P. to do with his two hundredweight of Parliamentary papers per annum? Etiquette, of course, forbids him to sell this vast accumulation of stuff to the mysterious men with the sacks who buy waste paper. It is gratifying also to reflect that Members of Parliament are not in the habit of going raving mad; otherwise the blue books might be utilised in the preparation of padded rooms. County Members of sporting proclivities have been known to declare that from four to six thicknesses of blue books make a capital rifle target at short range; but not all our M.P.'s are marksmen. Perhaps the most philosophic way of looking at blue books is to regard them as part and parcel of the British Constitution, for which every patriot is, of course, ready to die, although what it really is very few people can specify with precision.

WHIST is one of those seductive occupations, or amusements, for which ladies do not seem to be specially adapted by nature, although they often rise to a sufficient acquaintance with its pleasant mysteries to be able complacently to trump their partner's "best card." Notwithstanding Mrs. BATTLE's passion for the "rigour of the game," the average female card-player regards "scientific" play with abhorrence; and perhaps she is right in protesting against the modern tendency to make every game so painfully professional that the mere amateur has no chance in it. Yet it is undeniably difficult for a good player to refrain from strong language when he is harnessed to a partner who never sees the advantage of "returning a lead," and who makes a "revoke" with a smiling countenance, as if she had done something rather clever than otherwise. There are, we regret to say, ladies who talk at whist, which is one of the deadly sins of the game, and others perpetually confuse the countenance of the king and the knave. It will, therefore, be a surprise to the average English whist-player to hear that in America not only do ladies play the game very well indeed, but actually teach others how to play it, and make a living out of this practice. We are indebted to a Milwaukee contemporary for an account of a Miss WHEELOCK, described as "a pleasant-featured, frail-looking little woman," who has been engaged in the occupation of whist-teaching for two years, and who has had nearly two hundred pupils in that time. She is herself a brilliant whist-player, and an authority on the pastime, upon which she has written books, like our own ingenious "CAVENDISH"; only Miss WHEELOCK writes her books "for railway companies." We might be tempted to pause here and inquire whether the railway companies in America encourage whist-playing among their passengers, and, if so, "what is the reason of this thusness," as one of their humourists puts it. But whatever the explanation, the fact remains that here is a Milwaukee lady getting a livelihood out of her proficiency in a single indoor game; and, if anybody is inclined to object, on the score that whist is a gambling amusement, we must point out that, in its essence, whist is a game of skill much more than of chance, and that the playing for "threepenny points," or even guinea points, is in no way necessary for the enjoyment of a quiet rubber. Chess, draughts, dominos, are all capable of being turned into gambling pastimes; and it would be perfectly possible for a person to lose the whole of his fortune over "spillikins," or tin soldiers, if he is bent on doing anything so silly. As a matter of fact, the Milwaukee lady owes the money she makes out of whist to the contributions of her gentlemen and lady pupils, who flock to her in ever-increasing numbers; and under her spirited stimulus the rage for whist has taken firm hold of Milwaukee, and even Chicago demands her presence twice a week to get instruction as to trumps, aces, and "longest suits."

A truly remarkable personage this female professor of the finest of all card games appears to be. Her career has been an adventurous one. The Milwaukee paper omits to state where she was "raised"; but it volunteers the information that "some years ago she came here from Green Bay, and clerked in CHAPMAN's store." It is only American writers who can venture to coin such a verb as "I clerk"; but "clerking" was not altogether to Miss WHEELOCK's taste, and she very soon "conceived the idea of taking a claim in Dakota." The idea was no sooner conceived than it was carried into execution. With very little luggage, but with magnificent ideas, this energetic lady started out for the boundless West, her sole companion being a girl-friend. They took up a pre-emption between them, and for eight months lived on their claim, and made, no doubt, a very original pair of agricultural squatters. Eight months of the boundless West, however, proving quite as much as the female companions could stand, they returned to civilisation and Milwaukee, sadder but wiser women. The first thing that indefatigable little Miss WHEELOCK set about doing when restored to the town where she had once "clerked" was to set up what is called a "ladies' purchasing agency," of which more anon. The agency seems to have "eventuated in" a success, to quote the words addressed to MARTIN CHUZZLEWIT; but this did not prevent the fair American from wandering in fresh fields, for her next venture was the setting-up as a professional whist-teacher. Here she appears really to have found her vocation in life. Remarkable success has attended her efforts, and, if henceforth any Milwaukee ladies "forget what cards are out," or perpetrate a misdeal, it will not be the fault of the feminine ex-clerk and ex-agriculturist from Dakota. She has now become, as is proudly recorded of her, "one of the three ladies in the country who make a business of teaching the game of whist." The industry is a peculiar one, and it is not mentioned whether there happen to be any male whist professors in the United States. Nobody will for a moment dream of denying that there are a multitude of otherwise excellent people who would be all the better for instruction in this pastime; they would thus spare their partners many anxious and trying moments, and would themselves escape those awkward questions which at the end of a rubber are usually addressed to anybody who has made a conspicuous idiot of himself or herself in the course of the game. Of course it is always possible to explain away defeat by reason of the "bad hand" held; and this is just one of the beauties and advantages of whist, that it is neither wholly a game of skill nor wholly one of chance. It is a beautiful mixture of the two, and as such it affords both triumph in victory and consolation in defeat. If a side loses, then "the cards were badly shuffled," or one or other of the defeated partners was blessed with a "miserable hand, with no honours in it." If it gains, then the victory can be ascribed solely to the masterly manipulation of spades, diamonds, or hearts, and the adroitness with which clubs, in which the enemy was strong, were drawn out at an early period of the game. For the vanquished there is the thought that the cards in their courses fought against them; while the victors are happy in the sense of superiority and the solid acquisition of the "points," whatever they may be.

What is a "ladies' purchasing agency" exactly? It was no doubt very enterprising and philanthropical of plucky Miss WHEELOCK to set such a scheme on foot; but it would be satisfactory if she would explain to benighted Europeans precisely how the business is worked. If the agency is not one for purchasing ladies, which seems improbable in America, then it obviously is one by which ladies are enabled to purchase something else. We hear with surprise and awe that Miss WHEELOCK sends out "tons of merchandise every month." What sort of merchandise, and where does she send it to? We presume that this clever lady has hit upon the idea that country folk who live far from good shops would be glad to have their town commissions done by deputy, paying a small percentage on the sum expended to the agency which is good enough to do their shopping for them. If such be the case, it is curious that this really happy thought should have occurred almost at the same time to feminine brains on two sides of the Atlantic. The association which has been recently founded, and which is still in an embryotic condition, for supplying lady guides to persons visiting London hopes some day to do purchasing and other jobs for provincial clients, on just the same system as Miss WHEELOCK, of Milwaukee, has inaugurated in America. Now, here is an excellent idea for usefully employing ladies who happen to want work, and to have none to do—which is, unfortunately, an increasingly common occurrence as civilisation goes on. At present we are concerned with the idea of town ladies acting, not as guides, but as commission agents for their provincial sisters in respect to the thousand and one things which women are always wanting, and which can only be obtained properly in large centres of population; but the notion of lady guides is also highly original, and, if practically carried out and decently supported, it should come as a boon and a blessing both to those who guide and those who are guided. What could be nicer for an American or a Colonial party just arrived in the British Metropolis than to find an accomplished and lady-like chaperone ready to show them all the sights, to tell them exactly what things ought to be seen and the shortest ways of getting about, to point out the most fashionable churches, the best shops, the prettiest suburbs, and the most respectable and most popular nocturnal entertainments? The scheme of establishing these peripatetic female compendia of useful knowledge seems to combine usefulness and philanthropy in very equal proportions, and as such is deserving of every support. It is, however, the branch of the "lady guides" system which is to do business in London for people unable to come to town which assimilates the proposed English agency to the one already established and in successful working order in go-ahead Milwaukee. If the London guides were to take up whist as an optional subject, the resemblance would be still closer. We fear, however, that the supply of pupils would hardly warrant such an enterprise in our own land. Ladies with us either don't play whist, or play it by the light of nature and according to rules of their own; while gentlemen would probably be too proud to accept the services of even the most brilliant female player that ever "cut."

There appears to be no intention on the part of the Government to bring in any bill this session to extend the powers of Lord Ashbourne's Act, nor will they seek to introduce any measure this year dealing with the arrears question in Ireland. The session, it is stated, is to be given over entirely to dealing with Supply.

The Special Committee of the Cabinet on the state of our national defences having arrived at the conclusion that a considerable strengthening of the naval force of the country is necessary, steps are being taken to give effect to their recommendation. Within the next few days the fact will be announced to the House of Commons, together with a scheme which has been prepared by the Admiralty, for the building of at least eight first-class ironclads, over a score of swift cruisers, and a large number of torpedo boats and torpedo catchers. The designs for all these craft are in a forward state, and it is intended that their construction shall be undertaken at once and rapidly pushed forward to completion.

It is understood that the Government will discourage any attempt to discuss, on the English educational votes to be brought forward this evening, the recently-issued report of the Royal Commission, which the Ministers themselves have not yet had an adequate opportunity of considering. The principal estimate to be presented to-night by Sir William Hart-Dyke is for £3,576,077, showing an increase over last year of £117,270. There is also an increase of £6,745 in the vote for the Science and Art Department, and of £1,721 in that for the National Gallery. The estimated average number of scholars in public elementary schools is now 3,662,253, and the rate of the Government grant is 17s 6¼d per head, as compared with 9s 4¼d in 1868.

Mr. Michael Herbert, the Second Secretary of the British Legation at Washington, will, it is said, be left to act for some considerable time as the Chargé d'Affaires and the sole representative of this country's interests. The First Secretary is at present in England on leave, and as some months will no doubt elapse before a new Minister is appointed it is very questionable whether he will ever return to his official duties.

Lord Brownlow will in all probability succeed to the Under-Secretaryship to the Board of Trade, which has been rendered vacant by Lord Onslow's Colonial appointment. Lord Brownlow at present holds the honorary office of Paymaster-General, to which no salary is attached.

PARLIAMENTARY BUSINESS.—The House of Commons will meet to-day at three o'clock. There are several questions to be addressed to Ministers of the Crown. Sir Roper Lethbridge will ask whether the Government intend to afford any opportunity for a discussion on the report of the Select Committee on the affairs of the Hyderabad (Deccan) Mining Company. In Committee of Supply, Sir William Hart-Dyke, Vice-President of the Committee of Council on Education, will move and explain the vote of £3,576,077 for public education in England.

The Court.

BALMORAL, Nov. 8.

The Queen went out yesterday morning, accompanied by Princess Beatrice. In the afternoon her Majesty drove out, attended by the Hon. Marie Adeane and Miss M'Neill.

Lord Knutsford had the honour of dining with the Queen.

Princess Frederica and Baron Pawel Rammingen, who have been spending the autumn at Abergeldie Mains, left yesterday for the South.

A telegram from Windsor states that the Prince of Wales will leave on the 13th inst. for Flushing, to meet the Empress Frederick, and will accompany her Majesty and the Princess Christian to Windsor. The Royal party will reach the Castle on the 16th inst., the same day upon which the Queen is expected to arrive from Scotland. The Empress will stay at the Castle on a visit to the Queen.

Princess Christian, who has been staying upon the Continent for the benefit of her health, leaves Wiesbaden next Thursday, on her return to Cumberland Lodge, Windsor Great Park, where she will arrive on Friday.

Lord Lytton, Lord Rector of Glasgow University, arrived in Glasgow last evening by the North British Railway from London. He was received by the Lord Provost (Sir James King), the Very Rev. Principal Caird, and the professors of the university. About 1,200 students were drawn up in line, each bearing a lighted torch, and, after his Lordship had left the station for the university, the students marched in procession through the streets. Lord Lytton, who is the guest of Principal Caird, will deliver his rectorial address to-day.

After luncheon, at the Mansion House, yesterday, Sir Polydore de Keyser, the retiring Lord Mayor, proceeded in state to the Guildhall, when Mr. Alderman Whitehead, the Lord Mayor Elect, was admitted into office. The Town Clerk administered the declaration to Mr. Alderman Whitehead, who made and subscribed it. The late Lord Mayor then surrendered his seat, and Mr. Alderman Whitehead taking it received the diamond sceptre, the seal, and the purse. Mr. Winzar, the sword bearer, and Mr. Baggallay, the mace bearer, next surrendered their emblems of office, and the Lord Mayor returned them into their custody. After receiving the congratulations of the aldermen, the sheriffs (Mr. Alderman Gray and Mr. Newton), Mr. Alderman Whitehead, and Sir Polydore de Keyser returned to the Mansion House in the Lord Mayor's carriage as before. Sir Polydore de Keyser, on taking his seat at the Mansion House Justice Room for the last time as chief magistrate of the City, expressed his thanks to the officials and all connected with the business of the court for the admirable manner in which they had discharged their duties.

Mr. Alderman Whitehead, Lord Mayor Elect, has taken the Marie Antoinette suite of apartments at the Hotel Métropole, which he will occupy with his family until the completion of the redecoration of the Mansion House.

Lord Burghley, M.P., opened a new Conservative Club at Rushden yesterday afternoon.

Viscount and Viscountess Bury and family have arrived in town for the meeting of Parliament.

Lord Cranbrook arrived in town yesterday from Hemsted Park, Kent.

Sir Stafford Northcote has been appointed chairman of a committee to inquire into soldiers' rations. Among the members of the committee will be General Sir Redvers Buller, General Goldsworthy, M.P., Colonel Blundell, M.P., and Sir Arthur Haliburton.

Mr. W. G. Cavendish-Bentinck, M.P. for Falmouth, is expected to arrive in London by the White Star steamer Germanic on Nov. 19. He has paired with Sir Lyon Playfair until that date.

Colonel Duncan, M.P. for the Holborn Division of Finsbury, has been prevented by illness from resuming his Parliamentary duties, as has also Mr. Vernon, Unionist member for Ayrshire.

Viscount Wolmer, M.P., and Mr. Anstruther, M.P., are for the present acting as the Parliamentary "Whips" of the Liberal Unionist party.

A meeting was held yesterday of the Committee of the late Irish Exhibition at Olympia, at which a financial statement was submitted. From this it appears that the guarantors will sustain no loss, the exhibition having been a monetary as well as a popular success. After all accounts are paid there will be a surplus of £1,000, which will in all likelihood be handed over to some of the Irish charities.

We deeply regret to hear that Lord Tennyson has suffered a third relapse of rheumatic gout, and is confined to his room at Aldworth, Haslemere. On Wednesday, the fever due to the pain which the Laureate endures caused a temperature of 103°, while the pulse rose to 138.

PARIS DAY BY DAY.

[BY SPECIAL WIRE.]

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

PARIS, THURSDAY NIGHT.

Despite the melancholy mistiness overhead the Boulevards were very animated this afternoon. Everybody seems to be in town at last, and a walk from the Madeline to the Café-Anglais any fine afternoon between four and six will bring you in contact with at least half the celebrities and all the notorieties of this real City of Pleasure. The gradually increasing coldness of the Season is marked not only by the adoption of furred overcoats and sealskin-jackets, but also by the sparse sprinkling of spruce and elegant "do-nothings" outside the cafés. It is, in fact, becoming too dangerous, just now that the weather is on the turn, to sip liquors on the "terraces" before marble tables, so the loungers and lollers have given up for the present their afternoon inspections of Parisians, and especially Parisiennes, from their chairs outside the Paix or the Riche, and prefer to go inside. There is always, of course, a considerable contingent of ironclad persons who sit outside their cafés in any kind of weather, but they sometimes pay for their imprudence by the contraction of complaints which neither furred coats nor steaming "grog-Américain" can prevent. Walking is, however, far more preferable at the present moment than lolling either inside or outside of cafés, while, if the pleasure-seeker cares, he may drive out to the Acacias, where he will meet highly-interesting crowds of rastaquouères as brilliant as Don Ramiro Vasquez in the new comedy of "Pepa"; of local dandies with wonderful ties and miraculously-varnished boots; of gorgeously-attired denizens of the European Quarter; and, finally, a select contingent of Royal and Imperial visitors to Paris. Among the distinguished personages, for instance, who have just arrived here are the Grand Duke Vladimir Alexandrowitch, Queen Maria Pia of Portugal, and the Duke of Oporto.

In alluding a day or two ago to M. Mariani's appointment to Rome I remarked that other diplomatic changes were spoken of, and that, although nothing was as yet decided, it was thought in well-informed circles that the proverb, "There is no smoke without fire," might hold good in this case. This is, by no means, the first time that the probability of M. Waddington's removal from London has been discussed; but it is now being predicted with such persistency that the question cannot well be overlooked at this juncture. Various reasons have been assigned by those who have been clamouring more or less loudly for the removal of the French Ambassador at the Court of Saint James, and the silly story related by M. Naquet that, some years ago, during his tenure of office, M. Waddington revealed to Prince Bismarck a proposal made by Russia for the conclusion of a close alliance with this country has obtained some credit, it being argued that the Government could not, after this "revelation," retain M. Waddington in London; but the real motive of this agitation is the idea which prevails among the more influential partisans of an entente with Russia—that M. Waddington is too much of a persona grata in England, and that the Czar's Government will never consent to the conclusion of an alliance with France so long as he continues at his post. In short M. Waddington would be offered as a sacrifice to Russia. It is this train of ideas which has led these politicians to suggest the removal of the Comte de Montebello from Constantinople to London. M. De Montebello has co-operated heartily with his Russian colleague, and he is regarded here as having been eminently successful in his diplomatic projects. In fine the usual order of things, if this scheme were adopted, would be absolutely reversed. M. Waddington would be recalled because he was in high favour at the Court to which he is accredited, his successor being selected for a diametrically opposite reason. M. Flourens, who is an ardent Russophile, is believed to have concurred in this view at one time, but it remains to be seen whether M. Goblet will yield to the pressure that is being put upon him. This much, at least, may be said in the meantime, that the Minister of Foreign Affairs, in removing M. de Mouy from Rome, was inspired by the hope that M. Mariani's appointment would improve the relations between the two countries. With such a precedent, it would be rather strange if M. Waddington were recalled for the contrary reason.

Despite the active intervention of M. Floquet the Government sustained to-day a decided rebuff from the Senate, which at this juncture is extremely significant. M. de Marcère's Bill placing the expenses of the Paris police in the State Budget had come on for the Second-reading, and the Premier expressed his surprise that this should be the case, as the Government had a project of its own which it had submitted to the Council of State, and respecting which that body would, ere long, pronounce a decision, so that, whatever the Senate might do, it would be useless. Loud protests greeted what looked very like a challenge. M. Léon Renault, the Rapporteur, was opposed to an adjournment of the debate, which was eventually rejected by the House, the Senate finally adopting M. de Marcère's Bill, after only two hours' discussion, by 223 votes to 18.

The Naval Estimates were voted to-day by the Chamber, which also re-elected M. Anatole de La Forge and MM. de Mahy and Madier de Montjau—the Vice-President and Questeurs who had resigned.

Complaints are being made to-day in influential quarters at the manner in which the police-authorities dealt with the first dynamite outrage which occurred some weeks ago. It has been ascertained that the explosives which did such havoc in the Rue Boucher and the Rue Française yesterday morning were of precisely the same kind as those employed on the occasion to which I have referred, and the Prefecture is accordingly being taken to task for having neglected to adopt practical measures for the prevention of a repetition of these outrages. The police entertain no doubt that these explosions are the work of the Waiters or Barbers'-assistants who have so long been inveighing against the Employment-Registry Offices, and it is contended that if the "Political Department," as it is called, of the Prefecture would only co-operate harmoniously with the "Municipal Department," the Government and the public would be the gainers. Yesterday five waiters in all were arrested. One of these men had stopped at the door of the Office in the Rue Boucher a few days ago, and, shaking his fist at M. Floquet, the manager, as he was walking out, had exclaimed, "One of these days we shall blow you and your place up!" A man arrested to-day is a violent Revolutionist, named Espagnac, who has obtained considerable notoriety from his declarations against employers of labour at Anarchist meetings. He was pounced upon this morning at his abode, but was not captured without a severe struggle. He seized a revolver, but ere he could fire it was wrested from his grasp. Other arrests were also made to-day; for as soon as the Prefecture got wind of the explosions a smart detective—who is thoroughly acquainted with all the ramifications of the Anarchist Party in Paris, and with the Quarters inhabited by the excitable "politicians" who are always talking about the extermination of the Bourgeoisie and their readiness to "descend" into the street with a knife in one hand and a bomb in the other—was set on the war-path. Thanks to the information which he promptly supplied his comrades were speedily on the track. Assistance has also been given to the police by the "Directors" of the Employment-Registry Offices, who, besides the case already mentioned, have "spotted" among the crowd several persons who at different times had threatened to blow up their establishments. The remains of the bomb found in the Rue Boucher have been examined by an expert, who thinks that it must have been about fifteen centimètres in length and twenty-five centimètres in circumference, and declares that it was charged with dynamite. It was exploded by means of a tow-match steeped in saltpetre and coated with sulphur.

All sorts of theories are still floating about concerning the antecedents of the extraordinary adventurer Prado, alias Count Linska de Castillon, who is now being tried for murder before the Assize-court of the Seine. One person has positively recognised the sham count as a South-American buccaneer who in 1875 was at the head of a band of desperadoes who were the terror of the Antilles. According to this authority Prado and ten of his companions embarked on a Spanish ship at Puerto Plata, and while on the voyage to Santiago the rascals took possession of the vessel, disembarked the other passengers in a Haytian harbour, and sailed to the Margarita Islands, where they carried away everything from the vessel which they conveniently could.

Among the witnesses examined was Madame Couronneau. She related how Prado had appeared on the scene with a fair-haired girl, saying that he wanted to take the Chalet of Senon, and how, a few days afterwards, he had declared that he had really come as a suitor for the hand of Mauricette. When she remarked that he seemed to be a married man, he calmly replied—"I am like all the others. They have mistresses, and when they want to marry they abandon them." A family deliberation was held to consider the offer. At first the verdict was for a point-blank refusal, but Prado twisted the relatives round his fingers, and he was accepted. To begin with he appeared very well-behaved, but one fine day the family learned to their dismay that there were strong reasons for hastening on the marriage. Prado, however, hung back, and eventually Madame Couronneau admitted him to her home, where he passed himself off as her daughter's husband. Then came the arrests and the imprisonment, and the family was ruined. Re-examined, Madame Couronneau declared that she had never had any intrigue with Prado, and he averred that he had always loved her as a mother. The last witnesses were questioned with a view to ascertaining whether Prado had really fired at Eugénie Forestier at the Hôtel des Pyrénées at Bordeaux. A local gunsmith said that he had extracted a bullet from the door of the room occupied by the pair, and another witness averred that it would be impossible to hear the report of a revolver-shot in that room on account of the noise in the street. At this point the proceedings were concluded for to-day.

To-day began at Constantine, in Algeria, the trial of Henri Chambige, a young French littérateur and Wertherian, for the murder of Madame Grille, a blonde and beautiful English woman, the wife of a civil engineer, with whom Chambige was hopelessly in love. Chambige is supposed to be tainted with hereditary insanity, and his father committed suicide. When he was a student in Paris he read all the sentimental and mystical literature within his reach. His mind was a cauldron bubbling over with the undigested stuff which he gathered from the works of Byron, Göthe, Poe, Schopenhauer, Spencer, Stendhal, and the Goncourts. He wrote several excellent critical essays in a Review, and went half crazy over the preparation of a wonderful romance which was to be called "The Infinitesimal Dispersion of the Heart." On going home to Constantine he met Madame Grille, and fell madly in love with her. She was the ideal of his passionate day-dreams, and there is some room to suppose that she was also a sentimental person and under the influence of "hypnotism." One day she was found dead in a villa, whither she had gone with Chambige. She was lying on the floor of a room in her nightdress, her skull shattered by two bullets. Chambige, the New Werther, was by her side, and tried to shoot himself, but did not succeed. When arrested he said that he and Madame Grille had resolved to die together, like the lovers described by the poet Alfred de Vigny, and that the lady shot herself. The Court was crowded to-day. There were upwards of fifty-eight witnesses. The President, in opening the proceedings, said that there were two versions of the affair. One was that Madame Grille had been "hypnotised" by Chambige; the other that, loving the prisoner and not possessing sufficient funds to elope with him, she had implored him to kill her. Chambige was then examined. He gave his account of the scene at the villa, and, in a voice broken by sobs, told how Madame Grille had repeatedly cried, "Kill me! Kill me!" Chambige added that Madame Grille had even regretted that her children were not there, as she would have killed them too; in fact, she wanted to make a holocaust of the whole family. He was then so overcome with emotion that he could not proceed, so the President made him sit down and read his deposition as follows: "She took a revolver. I snatched it from her. She said to me, 'Kill me! Kill me! You have sworn on the head of my mother to do so.' I trembled like a leaf. She cried again, 'Kill me, I beg you!' She closed her eyes. I fired. She still moved; I fired again; she remained motionless!" Now for the version of the family. The President showed how the husband and the experts had declared the alleged love-letters of Madame Grille to be forgeries. The prisoner denied that he had "hypnotised" Madame Grille. He deplored the lady's death, but regarded it as heroic. He then gave an account of his intrigue. This is the latest news to hand this evening.

To-night was produced, at the Odéon Theatre, with splendid scenery and martial music, the Five-act Tragedy of "Caligula," by Alexandre Dumas. The play has been touched up by the able and loving hand of the great son of its illustrious author, and M. Alexandre Dumas fils was also present last night at the Odéon in order to watch the effect of the general rehearsal. "Caligula" is, however, just the same in its ensemble as it was when first produced at the Comédie-Française on Dec. 26, 1837. Alexandre Dumas had taken great pains to represent to Parisians, who were then in the height of the conflict between Classicism and Romanticism, that Imperial lunatic whom Gibbon calls the "furious Caligula," who sometimes went about the streets as a beggar and sometimes rolled about in his Palace on heaps of gold; who made his horse a Consul and gave him a golden manger; and played so many fantastic tricks in general that it is impossible to conceive how he could have ever received the Purple. Dumas went to Rome in order to write his play. He studied the Coliseum, the Mamertine-dungeon, and other historic landmarks, until he had woven in sufficient local colour, and then he went off to Naples, in order to finish his tragedy. When he returned to Paris, however, with his work he frightened the manager of the Français by his magnificent ideas of mise-en-scène. He wanted the unfortunate man to reproduce Ancient Rome on the stage, and to supply horses for the triumphal-car. The premiere of "Caligula" was a great event; medals were struck in commemoration of it; the King and the Duke and Duchess of Orleans were present—the Duke reading the play from the author's manuscript, which is now in the possession of the Comte de Paris. The piece was, however, hissed, and the satellites of the king said that it was an indignity to Royalty, and that the Royal Princes should not be present in the theatre at the murder of an emperor, even if he were so bad and bestial as Caligula. Théophile Gautier—most ardent of the Romanticists—defended the play, but the critics and the public were bitterly severe. To-night the public at the Second Théatre-Français showed more discrimination, and the piece, the actors, and even the superb scenic surroundings were frequently applauded. "Caligula" was acted by a debutant—M. Garnier—who made a favourable impression, particularly during the tempest in the Second act. M. Paul Mounet was, as usual, excellent, his rôle being that of the Gaul Aquila. Mdlle. Tessandier, with her golden-hair and superb Roman dress, made an effective Messalina. "Daybreak in Rome," with the Forum and the Via Sacra in the distance, formed a fine setting for the prologue, while classical accuracy as well as scenic effect were well blended in the Atrium, of the House of Cherea in the Third and Fourth acts and in the last tableau, showing the Imperial triclinium and the surroundings of Caligula at the time of his murder. M. Faure has composed for the work a Triumphal March and a short, simple Symphony. Altogether the play is well worthy of a visit in the absence of anything more modern.

The following were the results of to-day's Races at Auteuil: Prix de Saint-Germain.—Lord Ladour, first; Entraineur, second; Golden Penny, third. Won by two lengths; ten lengths between the second and third horses. Prix de la Bièvre.—Belleville, first; Grossmann, second; Roger Bontemps, third. Won by a length; six lengths between the second and third horses. Prix de Pau.—Rabastens, first; Rhodante, second; Montgeroult, third. Won by half-a-length; a length and a half between the second and third horses. Prix de Marly.—Le Torpilleur, first; Képhyr, second; Italien, third. Won by a length; six lengths divided the second and third horses. Prix de La Risle.—Intransigeant, first; Dubarry colt, second; Blanche, third. Won by a length; three lengths between the second and third horses.

On the Bourse to-day the last quotations were: Three per Cents., 82f 82½c (a rise of 15c); Four and a Half per Cents., 104f 67½c (a rise of 5c); Italians, 97f (a rise of 7½c); Turks, 15f 85c (a rise of 5c); Spanish Exteriors, 73f 60c; Egyptian Unified, 413f 75c; ditto Preference, 510f; and Ottoman Bank, 535f. Suez Canal shares closed at 2,235f, and Rio Tinto at 663f. Three per Cents. were active to-day, and Four and a Half per Cents. firm. There was an important rise in the Russian Loan of 1880, and Italians, Turks, and Spanish Exteriors also improved. In Egyptian Unified there was no change. Suez Canal shares have risen 6f 25c. On the Petite Bourse to-night prices left off as follows: Three per Cents., 82f 80c; Turks, 15f 87c; Spanish Exteriors, 73 11-16f; Egyptian Unified, 415f; Ottoman Bank, 536f 87c; and Rio Tinto, 664f 37c.

EARL OF BUCKINGHAMSHIRE'S ESTATES.—Lords Justices Lindley and Bowen, sitting in the Appeal Court yesterday, had before them an appeal by the Hon. C. E. H. Hampden, a legatee under the will of the late Earl of Buckinghamshire, from a decision of Mr. Justice Kay, directing a summons with regard to the sale of Hampden House to stand over until after the partition and sale of the Irish estates. The present Earl is anxious to keep Hampden House, Buckinghamshire, on the ground of its historical and family associations. The Lords Justices directed a further postponement until April.

ILLNESS OF THE EARL OF LUCAN.—The following bulletin was issued yesterday: "Lord Lucan has had a restless night, and is weaker this morning." On inquiry late last evening it was ascertained that his Lordship's strength had further decreased, and that there is great difficulty in administering nourishment to him.

AMERICANS "AT HOME."

[FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.]

Mr. Thomas A. Edison has erected his new works and laboratory at Orange, half-an-hour's ride from New York City. In accordance with an old habit, he lives at the scene of his labours. Having taken a vacation, from electioneering controversies, at the famous inventor's industrial retreat, I propose to give you the results of a conversation with my host, together with some personal observations which I made on my own account touching his "latest and greatest" discovery—this is the inventor's own view of the phonograph. "I regard it," he said, "as the greatest invention of my life, and I have resolved to devote my entire energies to perfecting it and superintending its manufacture for sale throughout the world." He trusts very little to joint-stock associations. It is true he has formed a company for the manufacture and sale of the phonograph, but he is the absolute owner of nearly 90 per cent of the stock. His works at Orange will employ from 400 to 500 people. This establishment has cost him about $1,000,000, and it is solely and exclusively to be used for the manufacture of the phonograph. The machine, as it is now completed to put upon the markets of the world, weighs 1st 10lb. It is made up of 300 pieces—brass, steel, and iron. One of the great advantages connected with its production is the fact that every separate part of it is manufactured by machinery specially designed for the purpose, some of the tools being very expensive and complicated pieces of mechanism. A large portion of the capital invested in the works has been employed in the purchase of this unique machinery. The proprietors rely more upon their special methods of production than upon their patents; the reason for this is that they can manufacture much cheaper than any competitor. It is proposed to have the phonograph ready for delivery in large numbers by the 1st of January. The plan of distribution is not to sell, but to lease them at a price which is equivalent to eight guineas a year.

One of Mr. Edison's associates, F. Z. McGuire, will leave America in a few days for China and Japan. The experiments made with the phonograph have much interested the authorities of these two countries, and the demand for the machine from Japan is much more emphatic than has been expressed by any European country. Mr. Edison is constantly improving the instrument, though he has already brought it to a state of perfection as far as repronouncing the tones of the human voice employed in conversation. Much has yet to be done in imitating vocal music. Instrumental music is very successfully reproduced. Within the last two or three days experiments have been made with the phonograph for the purpose of reporting public speeches. The most notable experiment, although conducted under very unfavourable conditions, gave remarkable results. It was at a public meeting in one of the upper towns in New Jersey that the test in question was made. Owing to the arrangements in the hall it was not possible to place the funnel for the reception of the sound near enough to the speaker's stand; it was six feet below it; while the phonograph itself was 19ft distant from the speaker. The only break made in the reporting was in the eight seconds required for the changing of the wax cylinders which are used to record the speeches. These cylinders, as a rule, will take about eight minutes of an ordinary address. Mr. Edison says this delay in changing the cylinders can be obviated entirely by using two machines. Two separate speakers were reported upon this particular occasion, covering a period of two hours of talking, with the exception of the small breaks already mentioned. The orators were fully and accurately reported, even to the deep, long breaths and coughs of one of them, who was suffering from a cold. The applause of the audience was also distinctly and sharply repeated. A joking remark of the chairman, made behind a speaker's back and at his expense, was also faithfully caught and recorded by the remorseless phonograph, while the cheers of the audience at the close of the meeting, the shuffling of feet, and the confused uproar of the departing crowd was also most faithfully noted. So far as ordinary human speech is concerned the phonograph is now perfection; the lowest whisper is sharply and distinctly recorded. Experiments are being constantly made with the wax cylinder, and Mr. Edison tells me that he hopes soon to obtain a new material, which will enable the user of the phonograph to fold the recording cylinders, so that they can be mailed in an ordinary envelope instead of a box.

An amusing feature connected with the phonograph is Mr. Edison's adaptation of it to toys. He is constructing a set of pocket instruments to be used for making a brief record, which can be repeated any number of times for the amusement of the owner. Children will be delighted to know that Mr. Edison has combined the phonograph with two dolls in his laboratory. One of these dolls, when a crank is turned under a purple cape at its back, repeats with much expression, "Twinkle, twinkle, little Star!" The effect of this is very comical, for the reason that the voice recorded in this infantile phonograph is that of Mr. Edison, whose tones are harsh and rough, so that the effect of speech is most grotesque coming from the waxen face of a sawdust-stuffed doll. It is proposed to have "silvery-voiced children" employed for the doll-phonographs. Sets of Mother Goose melodies will be furnished in any number to go with these popular playthings. When a child is tired of one tune it will be easy to take out the phonograph from the doll's heart and replace it with another.

A remarkable story of extravagant expenditure has been developed in the great will contest against the Stewart estate of the Scottish-American merchant prince. The case is directed against the will of his widow. Mr. Stewart left property valued at about $25,000,000. It was shown in Court that Mrs. Stewart scattered his estate during the short space of ten or twelve years, and actually died in debt. It is noted, however, that in the trial of the case nearly everyone connected with her amassed large fortunes through her carelessness and extravagance. During the ten months which succeeded her husband's death she disbursed nearly two millions of dollars, her income for that period being over 680,000 dollars. Nearly every year her accounts showed a large deficit. The expenditure charged against her was always in excess of her income. She gave away great sums to her relatives. In one year she distributed in this way nearly half a million of dollars. It appears from the management of the estate that many of these large sums charged against Mrs. Stewart were not properly debited, and should have been borne by certain sections of the property itself. The will is contested on the ground that Mrs. Stewart was not of sound mind.

No more curious funeral has ever been seen in New York than that of Li Yu Doo, a Chinese general who led his countrymen in the rebellion of 1861. He was one of the richest Chinamen in this country, and owned large amounts of property in New York, Boston, and Philadelphia. Nine days were occupied in preparing for the funeral. One thousand Celestials followed the body of the former General to the grave. The deceased was dressed in the robes of a mandarin of the dynasty of Ming. His queue was wound round the top of his head filled with gold pieces. Gold was put in his hand and Chinese paper money in his coffin. The casket containing his body was also surrounded by various articles of food for use on his way to the other world. The money was for the purpose of paying the expenses of his journey. The funeral throughout was conducted with all the ceremony of pagan pomp, and exactly in the same fashion as if it had taken place in China.

My prediction that unless the Democrats in New York made up their differences the Presidential election would go to the Republicans has been fulfilled. The desperate bid of Cleveland for popularity with the Irish in his exaggeration of the Sackville incident made it plain to impartial lookers-on that the Democrats were losing heart and hope some time before the eve of battle. The Republicans made the most of the British Minister's letter solely for the purpose of firing up the inflammable mind of the Irish voter, just as in the last campaign the Democrats carried the election chiefly on account of the imprudent utterance of the Rev. Mr. Burchard. This last-mentioned incident resulted in turning the Irish Republicans at a period when it was too late to explain. The Democrats hoped that the recall of Lord Sackville would come sufficiently early before election day for the President to say to his Irish friends, "Do not look at me as a friend of England." But the questionable policy was too late, even if its object had not been too transparent. The President only showed weakness in his haste to yield to popular clamour. No one outside of Irish-American circles was in any way disturbed over the Sackville letter. In the city of New York the noted Irish organisation known as Tammany is wild with excitement; all the important local offices are now in their hands. Hill and Hewitt are charged with betraying the Democratic Party. They preferred local to national interests, on the principle that it is better to rule in New York than serve in Washington.

RAILWAY TRAVELLING IN PERSIA.—A Reuter's telegram, dated Teheran, Nov. 8, states: "Since the riot at the railway station here last Saturday traffic was completely suspended until yesterday morning, when Naib es Sultaneh, Minister for War, and Amin ed Dowleh, President of the Council, in pursuance of the Shah's orders, rode over the whole line and restored the confidence of the employés. Many of the persons implicated in the disturbances have been imprisoned."

NEWS FROM VIENNA.

[TELEGRAM FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

VIENNA, Nov. 8.

King Milan's efforts to rule Servia in a more arbitrary fashion than heretofore ill-conceal the disquieting condition of the country. The modification of the Constitution in a State like Servia is a mere farce. The manner in which King Milan lately dissolved his own marriage amply proved to what extent the Servian Monarchy is Constitutional. The sittings of the Commission called together by the King for the purpose of framing Constitutional reforms are surrounded with much fuss and mystery, but outside Servia everybody knows that the King only invented it as a coup de théatre to divert attention from his Divorce. What his next expedient will be it is difficult to say, but meanwhile the tidings come from Belgrade that the King now no longer finds unlimited [illegible] for his foreign policy, which is notoriously [illegible] to Austria. Even his intimate confidant M. Christics is, it appears, on much more [illegible] terms than previously with the Russian Minister.

Considerable excitement has been caused in Servia by the publication in the national organ, Serpska Nezavisnost, of a flaming article against the Austrian occupation of Bosnia and the Herzegovina. It accuses the Austrian military authorities of tyrannical proceedings, and speaks with vehemence of the overbearing attitude of the Austrian Government officials, besides making a general attack against the civil and, particularly, the judicial administration. These charges are in harmony with the sentiments of the Servian communities in the sister Provinces. The Servian and Pravo-Slav elements occupy a formidable position not only numerically, but intellectually, both in Bosnia and the Herzegovina; and, unlike their Mussulman compatriots, they believe in their future development as an independent people, whilst, having been effectually emancipated from Ottoman misrule, they seize every available opportunity of creating trouble in order to convince foreigners of their love of independence.

Russia has plenty of such elements in the Balkan States to provoke agitation whenever she chooses, and undoubtedly there are symptoms just now of a remarkably suspicious character.

The Vienna School Board have for some time past made laudable but ineffectual efforts for preventing the sale of strong drinks to children. They have just passed a resolution to appeal for Government intervention, and it is proposed to lay before Parliament during the present session a Bill for prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors to boys and girls under fifteen years of age. As a matter of fact inebriety amongst Austrian school-children is not uncommon, and the boy that appears in the class-room in a state of intoxication has ceased to be a phenomenon. During the winter months the children of the poor are often sent off to school on empty stomachs, and in many cases a glass of the very cheapest spirits is given them to keep out the cold. Amongst the Slav portion of the population urchins of five and six often take a liberal dose of alcoholic drink on their way to school without apparently being the worse for it. In some instances they are accustomed to it from their infancy, when it is mixed in small quantities with their milk. It was high time that this cruel abuse should be suppressed.

GERMAN COURT AND POLITICS.

[TELEGRAM FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

BERLIN, Nov. 8.

This afternoon the Kaiser, who, as I am informed, is in very good health, spent some hours in Berlin. To-morrow his Majesty goes to Konigs-Wusterhausen, an old Royal shooting-box a few miles from Berlin, for a shooting-party the next day.

The day fixed for Kaiserin Friedrich's departure for Windsor is not yet determined upon. It is expected that her Majesty will remain three months in England.

A communiqué in the Post denies the truth of the report recently published that Kaiser Wilhelm had given his consent to his sister's betrothal to Prince Alexander of Battenberg. I note this dementi because I am able to corroborate it, and to add that not only are the difficulties in the way of such a union tenfold greater now than they were, but that there is not the slightest reason for suggesting that the matter had even the remotest chance of being re-considered.

QUEENSLAND GOVERNORSHIP.

[REUTER'S TELEGRAM.]

BRISBANE (QUEENSLAND), Nov. 8.

Sir Thomas M'Ilwraith, the Premier, has sent a telegram to Mr. Archer, the Agent-General for Queensland in London, stating that the news of Sir H. A. Blake's appointment to the Governorship of the colony, has been received with general indignation and astonishment. Sir Thomas M'Ilwraith adds that Sir S. W. Griffith, the ex-Premier, agrees in condemning the appointment.

The Queensland Government last month instructed Mr. Archer, Agent-General for the colony in London, to urge upon the Colonial Office the expediency of privately communicating to the Colonial Ministry the name of the proposed new Governor prior to the appointment being finally made. Lord Knutsford replied that it was impossible that Colonial Ministers should share in the responsibility of nominating a Governor.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

Gentlemen,—We hereby appoint you our sole Agents for the City of London. (Signed) S. and P. Erard and Co.

NOTICE.—THOMAS OETZMANN and CO. desire it to be most distinctly understood that they are PIANOFORTE MANUFACTURERS only, and that their only address is 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

PIANOS, 15s. per month, on the three years system. Carriage free. Tunings free. Become the property of the hirer if the payments are kept up. The cheapest house in London. THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

ERARD.—£35 genuine Erard oblique PIANO, seven- octaves and trichord throughout, in rich Italian walnut-wood case. A magnificent instrument, and offered at one-third of its original cost. Should be seen at once at the Great Sale of Second-hand Pianos at THOMAS OETZMANN and CO.'S, 27, Baker-street, London, W.

PIANOS.—A. LEFEVER, 228 and 230, Old-street, City-road, is now clearing out his stock of NEW and SECOND-HAND pianos at much below original cost, the room being required for his increasing furniture business. Over 150 to select from by most eminent makers: Collard and Collard, Brinsmead, Pohl, Arthur Allison, Schiel, Chappell, Murdoch, and others. All the above have the latest modern improvements. From 10gs., 12gs., 14gs., and 15gs. Five years' warranty given where required.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT to PIANO BUYERS.— Having accepted the management of Messrs. Shenstone and Co.'s piano and organ business (vide press), I have my entire STOCK of pianos, consisting of the very finest upright iron grands, cottages, piccolos, and pianettes for immediate CLEARANCE, at about one-third usual prices. Also a few harmoniums and American organs. Terms to suit purchasers, from 5s. 6d. per week, immediate free delivery. Trade and professional inspection invited. Stamp for catalogue.—DAVID J. WITTON, 37, St. Peter's-street, Islington-green, N. Estd. 1854.

KARN AMERICAN ORGANS. Charming music exponents for the home. Handsome, artistic cases. Full warranty. Prices and terms to suit all requirements.—Schreiber Piano and Organ Company, 3, Newman-street, Oxford-street, W.

SCHREIBER PIANOS. Patent Uprights and Horizontal Grands. All modern improvements. Artistic designs. Full warranty. Prices and terms to suit all requirements.—Schreiber Piano and Organ Co., 3, Newman-st., Oxford-street, W.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO.'S BOUDOIR GRAND PIANO, 6ft. long only, is specially recommended for rooms of a moderate size, where a large grand would be inconvenient. Rosewood or blackwood case, 100 guineas. Sole Agency, 170, New Bond-street, W.

EAVESTAFF'S PIANOFORTES are best English make, proved to last for generations. First-class work and materials. Touch and tone unsurpassed. Suit requirements of good players. Prices from 24 guineas; or on three years' system, from £2 2s. per quarter.—14, Berners-street, W. Est. 1823.

KIRKMAN and SON, 3, Soho-square, W. Gold Medal, Inventions Exhibition, 1885.
